Ickes Accuses Willkie Of 'Cheap Bravado' And Demagoguery

Declares References to Roosevelt 'Unpardonable,' in Bitter Denunciation of Debate Challenge.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Secretary Ickes, sarcastically calling Wendell Willkie a "simple, barefoot Wall Street lawyer," tonight accused the Republican presidential nominee of "unpatriotic demagoguery" and "unpardonable references" to President Roosevelt.

In a radio speech described as a reply to Willkie's acceptance address at Elwood, Ind., the Interior Department head asserted that Willkie's criticism of Mr. Roosevelt's conduct of foreign affairs was "contemptible."

Concerning Willkie's challenge to Mr. Roosevelt to meet him on the same platform in joint debates, Ickes said:

"One cannot challenge the President of the United States to go about the country barnstorming, after the preradio fashion of the past century, without laying himself open to the charge that he is indulging in cheap bravado.

"The gravity of Mr. Willkie's offense consisted of the fact that he was reflecting upon the dignity and striking at the prestige of an office which, as a candidate himself for the precidency, it ought to be his zealous duty to uphold and defend. The President cannot adjourn the battle of Britain in order to ride the circuit with Mr. Willkie. The President is not a mountebank.

"At that, Mr. Roosevelt has been effectively debating the Wendell Willkies of this country for years and will continue to do so.

"If Mr. Willkie is so eager for a debate in order to hold his audience, I suggest he challenge his running mate, Senator McNary, with whom he is at greater variance on domestic and foreign issues than his speech of acceptance shows him to be with the President."

Flynn Attacks Speech.

Meanwhile, in New York Edward J. Flynn, Democratic national chairman, said that Willkie's speech accepting the Republican presidential nomination showed he believed "in most everything that the Roosevelt administration has accomplished."

In a nation-wide broadcast, his first since he succeeded James A. Farley as head of the national committee, Flynn asserted that instead of "a vigorous and specific indictment of New Deal measures," Willkie "found it in his heart to praise."

Earlier, in a press conference, the Democratic chairman described as a "cheap publicity stunt" Willkie's suggestion that President Roosevelt meet him in debate.

Ickes said the Willkie speech had failed to live up to its advance "build-up."

"A man cannot make an effec-

Dispute Stirred By Arnall On Willkie Voting

Georgia Party Leaders Rally Quickly To Back Contention.

By LUKE GREENE.

Ellis Arnall's use of former Golf King Bobby Jones as an example in holding that Georgians are barred from voting in the September 11 primary if they intend to vote for Wendell Willkie in November has thrown the state into some sort of political dither.

There were reverberations from various parts of the state yesterday, but party leaders were quick to rally around Arnall and support his contention.

The leading challengers of Arnall's statement, which was neither a formal nor informal legal opinion, were David S. Atkinson, chairman of the Chatham County Democratic Executive Committee, and R. L. Anderson, chairman of the Willkie-for-President Club of Bibb County.

Gillis Cryptic.

Tall, lanky Jim Gillis, chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee, held to his usual silence except for this cryptic statement of his position:

"As chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee I am in favor of only Democrats voting in the Democratic primary." He added he did not desire to get into any controversy.

Zach Arnold, vice chairman of the committee, referred inquirers to Rule 2 of the Democratic Party rules, and said:

"This rule is clear, and I do not believe any person who cannot agree to support the Democratic nominee all the way from justice of the peace to President of the United States should vote in this Democratic primary."

Rule 2.

Rule 2, referred to by Arnold, provides that "all white electors who are Democrats and qualified to vote in the general election who in good faith pledge themselves to support the Democratic candidate for all offices to be voted on this year are hereby declared to be qualified to vote in said primary."

He added that he believed it the duty of voters to make up their minds before the primary whether they intend to support the Democratic or Republican presidential nominee and not change their minds after the primary.

Attorney General Arnall stuck to his guns and fired straight back at his challengers but said it might be possible for a Democrat to change his party affiliation after the primary and that in that case he could be challenged not in the general election but only in a subsequent primary.

Arnall's Opinion.

"A voter, who prior to the Democratic primary announces his intention to vote for a Republican in the final election, definitely classifies himself as a Republican and therefore ineligible to vote in the Democratic primary," he said.

Governor Rivers, Georgia's Democratic national committeeman, said "If I were an election manager on September 11 I would challenge the eligibility of voters who had made it known they were for Willkie. A copy of the party rule will be printed and posted at all polling places for the benefit of those who might not be familiar with it."

WITHIN ELEANOR DARE'S BEDROOM—Mrs. H. J. Pearce, wife of the president of Brenau College, looks within the cave which her son, Dr. H. J. Pearce Jr. (right), and William Eberhart (center) believe was the bedroom of the first American-born white child's mother when she later, according to the rock diary stories, became the wife of an Indian chieftain and the mother of another daughter.

Constitution Photos—Carolyn McKenzie.

"HEYR SITHENC 1593"—William Eberhardt, the man who first uncovered rocks relating to the story of the Lost Colony, has discovered, within four miles of his home, what may ultimately prove to be the final chapter in the mysterious wanderings of this English colonizing group. He points to a slab within a Chattahoochee river cave which bears the name of Eleanor Dare and the message that she was "here since 1593."

Virginia Dare's Mother Married Indian Chief, Stones Found in Cave Near Atlanta Indicate

Cavern on Chattahoochee Believed To Have Been Her Home.

By CAROLYN McKENZIE.

The final chapter in the story of mysterious wanderings of the Lost Colony of Roanoke may be written on stones found Saturday and further interpreted by scientists yesterday along the west bank of the Chattahoochee river 10 miles northwest of Atlanta.

There are five new slabs in this stone diary and it is believed they relate a hitherto unknown epoch in the life of Eleanor Dare, mother of Virginia Dare, the first American-born white child. They reveal, according to the translations, the marriage of Eleanore Dare to an Indian chief after her husband and her child, Virginia, had been massacred by Indians in South Carolina.

Believed Near Village.

The authenticity of these five new slabs is, according to the discoverers, reiterated by the presence of one rock embedded in the wall of a cave on the river bank which is believed to have been the Englishwoman's bedroom while she was the Indian chief's wife. The Indian village over which the chieftain ruled, it is supposed, was situated near the river and only a short distance from the cave.

The stories deciphered yesterday by Brenau College authorities led by Dr. H. J. Pearce, president of the school, reveal that Virginia Dare's mother had another child born probably while she lived in the Indian cave and was the chieftain's wife. It was a girl; but there is no record of what the mother named this child, nor the name of its father, nor the name of the tribe into which it was born.

Inscriptions Translated.

The fact that there was another child is supported by the story in these rocks which also tell that the mother lived in this section for about six years.

Dr. H. J. Pearce Jr., who translated the inscriptions on these rocks, believes that this chapter unfolds itself through the newly discovered slabs. He and other members of the discovery group are convinced that the stone regarding this Indian daughter does not refer to Virginia Dare because they have read about Virginia's Indian-inflicted death in their study of previously discovered rocks. As yet none of the rocks have been definitely authenticated.

The new rock bears this inscription:

"Father, I beseeche you, hab my dowter goe to Englande. Eleanor Dare, 1598."

Within the cave is found an inscription indicating that Eleanor arrived at this location in 1593.

Strange Discovery.

Strange as the discovery of these stones, and the even more strange Lost Colony's wanderings, is the story told by William Eberhart, the first discoverer of these rocks. He said he fell asleep in his automobile in South Carolina only to awaken and find a flat tire which must be jacked up with a stone. The stone he used told the story of the colony. Now a year later, less than four miles from his home on North Side drive, he has found what may ultimately prove to be the end of this fascinating adventure.

Since his first discovery, Eberhart has spent most of his time fishing and uncovering rocks. He and Brenau officials traced the colonists' trail to the Chattahoochee river banks and he has scoured every surrounding hill. Now he has begun his search for the tombstone of Eleanore Dare, or for some clue to indicate the events of her last year.

Berlin Flees to Shelters at Approach of British Planes.

By the Associated Press.

Britain flung the full force of air offensive against Germany and the Nazi-held French coast last night and today in the fiercest bombings of three nights of successive raids.

While the Royal Air Force launched squadron after squadron across the explosion-lighted English channel, the drone of scattered Nazi planes was heard over almost every quarter of embattled Britain, but no concentrated attacks were reported.

Air raid sirens kept more than 4,000,000 Berlin residents under cover for an hour and 40 minutes shortly after midnight, and one zy one every other German radio station went off the air, indicating widespread British bombing attacks across the Rhineland.

Intensive Attack.

Bomb bursts, huge fires and the flash of antiaircraft explosions seen clearly in southeastern England showed the intensity of the Royal Air Force's third successive overnight pounding of the nearby coast of France.

Three waves of British planes smashed at Boulogne, big Nazi base and center of a wide coastal stretch over which the British fliers ranged.

Observers said the new blows were the hardest the British have yet struck along the coast.

An air raid alarm sounded in Berlin at 12:42 a. m. this morning (5:42 o'clock yesterday afternoon Atlanta time). All German radio stations went off the air about midnight, usually an indication raiders are near.

Some Berlin citizens said they heard distant antiaircraft artillery firing west of the city. It was reported that British planes were turned back at Potsdam, about 12 miles east.

At the same time German raiders were sighted over every corner of England, but no damage was immediately reported.

There were repeated brilliant flashes on the opposite side of the English channel, about 22 miles distant. They obviously were made by demolition bombs of the heaviest sort.

Huge Fire.

Following one such flash, a huge fire flared up, blazing for so long that observers in England were sure an ammunition dump must have been destroyed.

(Every church spire on the French shore was visible as flashes followed the roars of bombs and guns, the United Press said.)

The British raids were apparently the strongest yet directed at the French coast in three successive nights of ever-heavier attack.

From the seafront of this harbor town (apparently Dover), the French shore seemed to be lit by repeated sheets of "heat lightning."

Both 1,000 and 500-pound bombs must have been used in the bombardment. It lasted several minutes. A harvest moon added to the eerie light of searchlights, exploding bombs and antiaircraft fire.

Antiaircraft shells and tracer bullets stabbed up into the clouded

Turkey Offers Aid To Greece, Report

ATHENS, Greece, Aug. 19.—(AP) Turkey was reported in informed quarters to have promised Greece today to come to her aid in the event this country is threatened by Italy.

This report was made after the Turkish minister to Greece called on Premier General John Metaxas.

A bitter press campaign against pro-British Greece has been under way in Italy. Authoritative Italians have insisted Greece has territorial designs on Italian-ruled Albania and some circles have said Premier Mussolini would demand slices of Greece and Yugoslavia.

Ship Transfers With Canada's Aid Foreseen

Capital Circles Say Plan Will Be Announced at 'Propitious Time.'

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(UP) The Navy Department tonight declined to discuss reports that Canada will receive several United States destroyers if and when the United States and the dominion form a defensive alliance.

A department spokesman said "we have no statement to make on the sale of destroyers to any foreign government." It was implied, however, that the naval high command had laid its views on the issue before President Roosevelt, who is personally conducting negotiations for the alliance.

Congressional circles, meantime, continued to insist that the administration has perfected a plan for transfer of 50 destroyers to England with Canada as the probable "middle man."

These sources say that Mr. Roosevelt will announce the program when he considers the time is propitious. This presumptively would be after congress has disposed of the explosive conscription and National Guard mobilization bills.

The administration was placed on record in favor of destroyer aid for England by William C. Buulitt, United States ambassador to France, who advocated the sale in a speech at Philadelphia Sunday.

The 1939 edition of Jane's fighting ships listed the following units in the Canadian fleet:

Six medium destroyers, five minesweeping trawlers, four trawlers in the fisheries department which can be converted to minesweepers, 35 vessels of various types used by the departments of transport, mines and resources, and lands which can be converted in naval auxiliary vessels and four customs patrol vessels.

Jane's 1939 edition listed eight destroyers, three submarines and

Mussolini Gains Vital Base Near Suez; Egypt Attack Forecast.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—Britain abandoned her Somaliland protectorate today to Italy, conceding defeat in the first phase of the far-flung war in Africa.

The withdrawal was the first time in more than 100 years that a victorious enemy power has forced the British out of one of the units of their vast overseas empire "on which the sun never sets."

As at Dunkerque, when they were forced to flee from Flanders, the British said they stuck to the Somaliland fight as long as possible to make the Italians pay the highest price for their victory.

Supplies Removed.

Then they made a successful withdrawal by ship, removing much of their material with them and destroyed what was left behind.

British airmen rained bombs on troop movements and supply lines stretching from Italian Somaliland clear to the coast through the British protectorate on the Gulf of Aden, to cover the retreat.

The withdrawal from Somaliland—British since 1884—gave the Italians unchallenged possession of an East African wedge extending from Eritrea on the north toe border of Britain's Kenya colony on the south—the whole of the "horn of Africa."

Italy has won a strip of coast covering part of the Red sea at the "back door" of the Suez canal, the narrow Rab el Mandeb strait between French Somaliland and Britain's Aden protectorate, the Gulf of Aden and the Indian ocean.

The British months ago ordered their ships to skip the Suez canal, north of the Gulf of Aden, and sail around Africa.

Attack on Egypt Seen.

Success of the Italian drive on Somaliland, regarded by British observers as a possible prelude to an attack on Egypt, also secures the rear of Italy's East African

Chungking Is Swept by Flames After Heavy Japanese Bombing

CHUNGKING, China, Aug. 19. (AP)—At least 25,000 persons were reported homeless tonight as flames started by Japanese incendiary bombs destroyed the American Methodist church and raged uncontrolled through a vast midcity section a mile and a quarter long and a quarter-mile across.

The loss of life was inestimable.

The bombs were dropped every few minutes for two hours on central Chungking and the hitherto undamaged residential section in the fifth air raid in three days, and the hardest attack since the bombings started early in June.

Several thousand policemen, firemen and volunteers battled late into the night to prevent the flames from spreading beyond the bomb-splattered area before new raids unloosed still wider destruction throughout the Chinese provisional capital.

The American Methodist hospital escaped damage and its staff treated 50 persons injured by the bombings and awaited any survivors who might be brought out of the flaming buildings.

Authorities said that four hours after the fires raged none but a few firemen who entered the blazing area had lived to fight their way out through the intense heat and smoke.

Leaders Clash Over Arnall's Primary Stand

Whether Rule Will Be Challenged in Courts Doubtful.

Whether the Democratic party rule forbidding Republicans from voting in the Democratic primary would be challenged in the courts remained in doubt yesterday as political leaders clashed over the interpretation of the rule.

In Savannah, David S. Atkinson, chairman of the Chatham county executive committee, took issue with Attorney General Ellis Arnall's statement that Republicans should be barred from voting in the primary.

He declared that "persons may cast their ballots according to their own conscience and regardless of how they vote in the primary, it will not be mandatory for the same voter to carry out that procedure in the general election."

Challenges Arnall.

In challenging Arnall, Atkinson called attention to the Savannah election case of Stewart v. Seabrook (156-Ga.-192) which says in substance:

"All citizens of the United States who have reached the age of 21 years are legally qualified to vote in the general election and any restriction against their voting as they see fit is unconstitutional."

In Macon R. L. Anderson, attorney and president of the Macon Willkie-for-President Club of Bibb county, said Arnall's opinion "has no more to do with the September primary nor those who vote in it than would the opinion of any other citizen of Georgia.

"I and many of my legal associates agree and contend that any white Georgia voter can vote in the September primary for any candidates for state offices on the ticket, and in the November election he will be morally bound to support the nominees for state offices of that September primary.

"But those same voters are not bound, morally or otherwise, to vote for any candidates for President or vice president who may offer for election in November."

Governor Rivers said he did not see how any voter could conscientiously participate in the Democratic primary "after giving advance notice to the public that they are going to vote the Republican presidential ticket in the November general election."

In a radio address last night Abit Nix, candidate for Governor, called on "all precinct election managers in the September 11 Democratic primary to challenge Republicans wearing a Democratic label who are trying to elect a Governor in our Democratic primary."

The full statement of Zach Arnold, vice chairman of the State Democratic executive committee, follows:

"Rule 2 (of the Democratic party rules) provides that all white electors who are Democrats and qualified to vote in the general election who in good faith would pledge themselves to support the Democratic candidate for all offices to be voted on this year are hereby declared to be qualified to vote in said primary.

"Rule Is Clear."

"This rule is clear and I do not believe any person who cannot agree to support the Democratic nominee all the way from justice of the peace to President of the United States should vote in this Democratic primary.

"The question of voting in the primary and the challenging of voters is necessarily left in the hands of the local election managers. Certainly, this being a Democratic primary, no one except Democrats should be allowed to vote in it. If the Republicans want a primary, then let them call one.

"As to whether a voter can change his mind after the primary and before the general election, I would say that a man has a right to change his mind, but that he should rely on his conscience. It is my opinion that voters ought to make up their minds before the primary."

Arnall Statement.

Arnall's full statement follows:

"The declaration by Bobby Jones of his intention to vote for the Republican candidate for President in the November election bars him from the Democratic primary under the following party rule:

"'All white electors who are Democrats and qualified to vote in the general elections who in good faith will pledge themselves to support the Democratic candidates for all offices to be voted on this year are hereby declared qualified to vote in the primary.'

"This rule had its conception in Reconstruction days and was promulgated so as to prohibit Republicans, carpet-baggers, renegade Democrats, hyphenated Democrats and Negroes from participating in the White Democratic primary. It has never been changed and still serves the purpose for which it was intended.

"A voter, who prior to the Democratic primary announces his intention to vote for a Republican in the final election, definitely classifies himself as a Republican and therefore ineligible to vote in the Democratic primary.

"There is nothing in the law, or in the party rules, which says that a Democrat who does not so classify himself prior to the primary can be prevented from voting in the primary and subsequently changing his party affiliation and voting Republican in the general election, except that by participating in the Democratic primary he pledges himself.

"A person who thus changes his party affiliation could be challenged in any subsequent Democratic primary unless in the meantime the voter should repudiate the Republican ticket and announce for the Democratic ticket.

Rule Unchanged.

"The party rule in Georgia has never been changed as it has in South Carolina where the rule this year is that a voter in the Democratic primary must pledge himself only as far as the state Democratic ticket is concerned and not the national ticket.

"The argument that a Democratic voter cannot be bound to vote for the Democratic presidential candidate simply because there was no presidential primary this year in Georgia is without weight because the party rules bind the voter to the nominee whether selected by primary, convention or otherwise.

"Whether the party rule will be enforced to prevent voters who vote for the Republican candidate in the general election from voting in subsequent Democratic primaries depends entirely upon the local Democratic executive committee. So far the rule has not been generally enforced, particularly in Fulton county, which in 1928 went for Hoover, the Republican candidate.

"To have enforced the rule then might have brought about a two-party system in Georgia, or at least in Fulton county, and it is probable that the party leaders decided it was in the best interests not to make the matter an issue that might result in the two-party system.

"I personally am a believer in the two-party system."

Refugees Plod Home in Wake Of N.C. Flood

Down-River Towns Brace for Crest of Raging Water.

ROANOKE RAPIDS, N. C., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Thousands of flood refugees plodded homeward tonight as the Roanoke river began receding here after claiming four lives and destroying more than a million dollars' worth of property in Halifax county.

Meanwhile, towns downriver braced themselves for the flood's crest, which reached an all-time mark of 31 feet above flood level at Weldon, near here, last night. Williamston, south of here, piled sandbags along highways as a precaution.

Three thousand persons in the Roanoke Rapids-Weldon area were made homeless yesterday. A thousand more were rescued by boat from a farm security project near Tillery. Four hundred convicts were marooned at Caledonia prison farm after a nine-mile dike collapsed.

Desk Sergeant A. P. Mitchell, of the police here, said 8,000 to 10,000 persons in and about Roanoke Rapids would have to depend on charity and relief because the flood, which damaged many industrial plants, caused a shutdown of many businesses.

Senate Votes Safeguards for U.S. Draftees

Adopts Amendment Against Foreclosures, Civil Actions.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(UP) The senate today wrote into the pending Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill an amendment designed to safeguard draftees against foreclosures, evictions and other civil actions on fixed obligations which could not be met with a soldier's pay.

The amendment, sponsored by Senator John H. Overton, Democrat, Louisiana, provides that conscripted men may not be deprived of their personal property because of failure to meet taxes, mortgage payments or similar charges. A moratorium would be provided for insurance premiums.

Overton's amendment was adopted unanimously. It would provide for draftees all the benefits of the soldiers' and sailors' relief act of 1918. It had already been written into the bill authorizing President Roosevelt to call up 360,000 National Guardsmen and reserve officers for extended training.

Branch Takes Oath as Head Of Welfare Unit

Governor Swears in Minister as Successor to Deen.

Dr. Joseph M. Branch, 40, Davisboro, Ga., Baptist minister and chaplain of Georgia's house of representatives, was sworn in last night by Governor Rivers as director of the State Department of Public Welfare.

Dr. Branch will take over his new duties this morning. He succeeds Braswell Deen, who resigned two weeks ago to become a candidate for congress from the eighth Georgia district.

After Dr. Branch had taken the oath before a small group of relatives and friends, Governor Rivers turned to him and said:

"Lots of luck, Joe, you'll need it. But I know you are going to do a good job over there."

Legion's Heads Urge Approval Of Conscription

Ralph T. Jones Addresses Macon Conference on Defense.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

MACON, Ga., Aug. 19.—Georgia American Legion leaders today were on record in favor of speedy congressional enactment of the Burke - Wadsworth conscription bill without restrictions, and had voiced a united plea to Georgia congressmen to "do their utmost to bring about its early passage."

Georgia department commanders and adjutants, meeting in special conference here yesterday, heard Ralph T. Jones, associate editor of The Atlanta Constitution, term England the United States' last line of defense 'because we aren't prepared to defend ourselves."

Mr. Jones expressed confidence that the "last line of defense will not break," but urged swift removal of every obstructive law which hinders quick action on selective service. He referred to Senators Nye and Vandenberg directly as "obstructionists."

He urged full support of Britain in the supply of equipment, but said "the British don't need men."

Captain W. J. Redfern, of Atlanta, discussing the part the Legion will play in home defense, called for investigation of what he termed "communistic poison and propaganda" being fostered in the state schools "through the means of reference literature and courses called social science."

Wilson To Bar Names of Reds From the Ballot

Would Be Against Public Policy, Says Secretary of State.

Acting on the legal advice of Attorney General Ellis Arnall, Secretary of State John B. Wilson announced definitely yesterday that he will not place the names of Communist candidates on Georgia's election ballot.

Several weeks ago the attorney general voiced the opinion that Communist candidates should be barred from being voted on, but there had been no final decision on the matter.

Wilson said that other states might follow Georgia's leadership, pointing out that he had received a letter from Clarence V. Beales, state commander of the American Legion in Colorado, inquiring as to how Georgia planned to shut the doors on the Communists.

"It would be against public policy to place on our ballot the names of candidates of a party which seeks to overthrow our Democratic constitutional form of government," Wilson said. "Under the legal advice of the attorney general I simply will not certify the Communist candidates to the Governor."

Governor Rivers concurred in this policy, explaining that since the Communist party was not bona fide and controlled by foreign powers, there could be no law to force the inclusion of Communists on the state's ballot.

Revenue Agents Seize 995 Gallons of Whisky

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

ATHENS, Ga., Aug. 19.—The largest liquor confiscation in northeast Georgia since the repeal of prohibition was made Saturday night by internal revenue agents near Lavonia.

Officers seized 995 gallons of non tax-paid whisky and a truck which was carrying it. They listed the driver as Lawrence Vandiver, of Atlanta. The illicit liquor was poured into the Oconee river.

A hearing for Vandiver was held immediately, and he was placed in jail at Eatonton in default of $1,000 bond.

Catholics in Germany To Be Asked for Support

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—(AP)—(Via Radio)—The German radio said today that the drafting of a pastoral letter appealing to German Catholics to co-operate with Adolf Hitler's fight for the existence of the German people is on the agenda of the Greater German Roman Catholic Bishops' Conference.

Forty-five out of 48 German bishops attended the opening meeting today.

Senate Passes Bill To Send For Refugees

Measure Permits Bringing Children From the War Zone.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(AP) The senate today unanimously approved legislation permitting American ships to remove children from the war zones under safe-conduct pledges from the belligerents while a German embassy spokesman warned that the Nazis' "total blockade" would make it dangerous for any vessel to enter British waters.

Dr. Wilhelm Tannenberg, of the embassy, was asked about the children's transportation at a press conference. He said that German military authorities would have to decide whether ships could be sent through the blockade for the children, but expressed the view that such voyages would be dangerous.

Debate Is Brief.

The senate acted after brief debate in which Senator Ashurst, Democrat, Arizona, said that he did not "regard safe conduct offered by Hitler as of the slightest consequence."

The bill would amend the neutrality act to permit American ships, under prescribed conditions, to transport children under 16 years of age who were sponsored in this country in such a manner as not to become public charges.

"Hitler Lycanthropist."

"Hitler is what we call a lycanthropist—that is, a man who imagines he is a werewolf," Ashurst told the senate.

"Hitler would sink these ships and send these children to be devoured by the monsters of the deep if he could advance himself or his views one inch.

"Is there a man alive who in his heart belives that safe conduct granted or issued by Mr. Hitler is worth anything? Hitler has broken every promise he ever made. His word is worthless.

"I wish the record to show my belief that the nation, the country or the man depending upon Hitler's word has indeed sweetbreads for brains."

Canada and the U. S.

The conference between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King, of Canada, will go into history as one of the most important events of modern days. For the first time the two great nations of North America have linked hands for their joint defense against foreign aggression.

For 150 years, while Canada and the U. S. have set the world an example of the perfect relationship between bordering countries, Canada has, by tacit consent, been outside the provisions of the Monroe Doctrine. Technically, perhaps, it has been excluded because the accepted faith in the might of the British empire has made it unnecessary to even consider Canada as a possible ground for any attempted violation of that historic document.

Now, however, with the new force of Nazidom suddenly arisen in Europe, with Britain herself engaged in a life and death struggle for survival, the future of Canada becomes of immediate concern to this country. Should England fall, in all probability Canada would become the heart of the empire and thus inherit the leadership in Britain's war against Hitler.

Should such dire developments come true, this country could not long remain a non-belligerent in the world struggle between freedom and totalitarianism. In brutal frankness, this country would be at war with Germany whenever Hitler dared to attack Canada or any portion of this continent.

It is significant, too, that the joint board of defense to be set up by the two countries is to be permanent. It is so specified in the agreement. This means that the policy of joint defense is recognized as a standing policy of both nations. A condition which was undoubtedly true practically, thus becomes officially recognized.

It must be remembered, too, that the creation of this joint defensive board definitely places the United States among the nations at war with Germany, should certain eventualities occur. While today this country may be a technical neutral, it is still an ally of a country at war and is thus vitally concerned in seeing that ally's enemy defeated and in doing all it possibly can to aid that defeat.

Of course, no formal treaty between the two countries can be consummated without the approval of the United States senate. No President can commit this country to any treaty without senate ratification. But it needs no saying that, should Canada be attacked, senate approval of any joint action would be promptly forthcoming. Public opinion would see to that.

If European nations now under the heel of a conqueror had had the foresight to plan joint action, in advance of the attack, and had acted jointly, the map of Europe would be far different today.

It is, at least, reassuring to know that Hitler will not be able to conquer America piecemeal. If he ever attempts to spread his dream of world conquest to this side of the Atlantic, he will find Canada and the United States standing shoulder to shoulder against him.

Comparative Tragedy

It is difficult for us who reside in peaceful America to get any adequate idea, in our own minds, of the number of helpless civilians who are killed by enemy bombers in a nation being attacked, such as Britain. Some of us picture great swaths of dead, over areas blocks wide, wherever a bomb may fall. Others just can't picture such death at all.

Therefore it comes as a welcome sidelight on the extent of bomb-brought tragedy to read some simple statistics reported from London for the month of July. During that month the number of Britons killed by Nazi bombs was less than half the number of those killed by traffic accidents on Britain's highways.

That, now, gives us a picture. We can, in imagination, apply it to America. Just secure the figures on traffic fatalities for July, in this country, take two-fifths of that total and you get a comparative picture indicating what the bomb casualties would be, in this country, if it were exposed to similar bombing to that endured by Britain in July.

Of course, the intensity of air attack is much greater today than it was in July. Still, the comparison of bomb deaths and traffic fatalities is helpful toward understanding of the whole picture of war over England.

Bullitt Warns

Ambassador William C. Bullitt, home from his post in France, issues stern warning to the people of the United States. He bluntly declares that Hitler will attack this country if Great Britain is defeated and therefore urges the sending of American destroyers of World War vintage to aid in England's defense.

Ambassador Bullitt speaks from first-hand knowledge. His experiences in France, prior to and after the capitulation by the Petain government, give him an understanding of the ambitions and plans of the Nazis that few, if any, men on this side of the Atlantic can possess.

This country, today, is in as great peril as was France one year ago, declares the ambassador. All he seeks to do is to arouse Americans to that peril so that they may not be easy prey for internal disruption and consequent conquest, as was France.

Ambassador Bullitt recognizes, too, the simple fact that, at present, the first line of American defense is England and the British empire. This is so self-evident it should need no further definition. For it is plain fact that, if Britain falls, America is the next in line for Nazi aggression. It might, in fact, be said that today Britain is our last line of defense. For, until our defenses over here are put into such shape we can defend ourselves completely and impregnably, we have no line of defense worthy the name.

At the moment the need of Britain is for destroyers, to keep open her lines of ocean communication and to prevent Nazi invaders from crossing the English channel. There are other needs, too. For planes and guns and tanks and machine tools and raw materials of the equipment of war. But experts say the most pressing need of all, at the moment, is for destroyers.

General Pershing has said that 50 destroyers, sent to England at once, could well prove the deciding factor in the outcome of the war.

Is it impossible for democracy to act promptly and to do the thing which appears so wise and necessary, without delay? One of the best ways to assure that the need shall be met, promptly, is for every American to write, or wire, his senators and congressmen, urging and demanding legalization of the transfer of destroyers, at once. Make sure the Nazi agencies in this country, and those organizations of misled Americans which innocently allow themselves to be used as a cloak for Nazi purposes, already have an organized assault by mail and by wire going to Washington in opposition to the destroyer proposal. They send out their letters and telegrams whenever anything is proposed which might aid Britain or injure their master, Hitler.

The only way to overcome these internal enemies is by independent, free Americans sending such floods of letters and telegrams they shall be swamped, obliterated in effect.

That Americans as a whole approve the sending of the 50 destroyers is shown by the Gallup poll which, after wide "sampling" of public opinion, reported last Sunday that 61 per cent of those questioned favored sending the ships, with only 39 per cent opposed.

HURRICANES AT THE BATTERY

(From The Richmond Times-Dispatch.)

Although at least 35 people seem to have been killed by the hurricane that swept the Georgia and South Carolina coasts, none died in Charleston, which was the coastal city most severely struck by the storm.

When storms lash at the Battery, Charlestonians know, from long experience, how best to protect themselves. Accurate records show that South Carolina's picturesque city of the old south, which remains uncorrupted by a too-brazen modernity, has for the past 230 years been visited by tropical storms on an average of every 12 years. During the 25-year period when the rice growers of South Carolina were taking their last stand against the storms, there were hurricanes every six years. After this, the planters who had raised the world-famous gold rice in the Low Country, virtually gave up the ghost.

Charleston was in the center of the old rice industry. Duncan Clinch Heyward, former governor of South Carolina, in his "Seed From Madagascar, describes one of the disastrous storms which broke the rice planters of the lowlands. This came on August 27, 1911. "All night I sat on the piazza of my house in Charleston, three doors from the Battery," said Mr. Heyward, "while the wind came in gusts, then came again in greater gusts, driving the rain before it through the blackness of the night. . . . I saw the ocean actually coming up Meeting street, until all the lower part of Charleston was under water. As the water receded, I could see timbers from a wrecked vessel floating down Meeting street, going out with the tide to the sea. When daylight came, the waves still pounded against the Battery, striking with such force that their spray was dashed as far as Church street, a block away. I knew that on Combahee, we were having a repetition of the destruction of the year before, and I knew also that the death knell of rice planting in South Carolina was sounded."

BULLITT'S ROLE IN PARIS WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Now that Ambassador to France William C. Bullitt has returned from his rest in the north, it is possible to tell a coherent story of his role during the days of the fall of France. It is a story which does Bullitt considerable credit, and explains several mysterious points about his behavior. Yet for all its odd detail and matter-of-factness of incident, it is also a sad and terrible tale for our times, enacted against the background of one of the great source cities of our culture.

GOVERNOR OF THE CITY Why did Bullitt stay in Paris when the French government, to which he was accredited, had departed for Bordeaux? This is the question which most puzzles the professional diplomats in Washington. The answer is fairly simple. He was asked to do so, in order to serve as unofficial governor of the French capital until the German occupation took place.

Bullitt's decision to remain in the capital was made a week before Paris fell, when the thought that Paris might have to be abandoned first became a certainty in the minds of his friends, the French leaders. Naturally he had already discussed the possibility of the fall of Paris with the President and Secretary of State Cordell Hull. Being a fairly romantic fellow, he personally wished to follow the example of American Minister Gouverneur Morris, who was the only diplomat to remain in Paris during the Terror; of old Minister Washburn, the only diplomat to hang on through the German siege in 1870 and the ensuing time of the commune; and of Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, who stayed behind when the government fled in 1914.

The point was not definitely settled, however, until Bullitt discussed the problem with French Premier Paul Reynaud and Minister of the Interior George Mandel. Reynaud and Mandel actually pleaded with Bullitt to stay on, telling him that there was no French official capable of taking charge, that the interregnum between the government's departure and the German occupation would be a period of grave danger, and that he must therefore take over. Bullitt agreed to do so, but only on condition that Mandel order the Paris police and firemen, who had been expected to follow the government, to remain behind. When the government left, Bullitt was in charge, with unofficial powers over the whole city he loves so well.

COMMUNISTS AND THE RADIO Even with the police and firemen at his orders, however, Bullitt did not have an easy problem on his hands. During the interregnum in Paris, the French Communists broke away from control of their Nazi allies. There were estimated to be several hundred thousand of them in the working class suburbs, and their secret radio station, whose calls were picked up by the Paris police, was broadcasting messages urging an immediate uprising. There was no way to deal with the Communists, except to maintain a careful police watch for signs of trouble, and to wait until the interregnum ended.

A more serious puzzle was how to prepare for orderly occupation of Paris by the Germans. When he acceded to the request of Reynaud and Mandel, Bullitt had supposed that he would be able to communicate with the German high command by radio. But just before leaving, the French general staff had ordered the destruction of all the radio broadcasting facilities in the city. The secret facilities of the Fifth Column, of course, were not available to Bullitt.

For a good many hours, while members of his staff toured the forsaken city on watch duty, Bullitt remained at the embassy trying frantically to establish some kind of telephonic contact with the outside world. The need was desperate, for if the Germans could not be warned how to enter the city peaceably, the most disastrous consequences might ensue. Then happened one of those ridiculous but fortunate accidents which do, sometimes, rescue situations, even situations of great gravity and importance.

LUCKY CHANCE It was impossible to get through to the outside world from Paris. But it was not impossible to get through to Paris from the outside world, as Bullitt suddenly learned when a call came through from Minister to Switzerland Leland Harrison in Berne. Harrison was calling about a trivial passport matter, of all things. Bullitt seized the telephone, and dictated to him a message to the German high command, describing the arrangements made for receiving the German armies, urging that the occupation take place in the least disruptive way possible, and politely warning that almost the entire American embassy staff was still in the city to act as the eyes and ears of the outside world.

Bullitt's simple plan was to notify all members of the Paris police at the city gates to be on the lookout for advance detachments of German roops, and to order the police to report the Germans' arrival immediately. He suggested that, if the first German detachment to arrive would simply collar the first policeman they saw, contact could be established and details of the occupation program settled forthwith.

By RALPH T. JONES.

Sunday In Macon.

It was my privilege to speak, on Sunday, at a statewide meeting of the American Legion, in Macon. Grand fellows, and girls, these Legionnaires and the auxiliaries and just about as fine an audience for a speaker as you could desire.

They were meeting, primarily, to discuss what aid the Legion can give in the matter of organizing home defense. Unfortunately, I couldn't stay for the discussion, but it is safe betting something constructive and intelligent was the outcome.

It is quite possible some of the complacent sneerers have an idea that "home defense" is rather unnecessary for us, here in Georgia, Atlanta, Macon, etc. The very fact that there are such complacent individuals is one of the chief reasons why home defense is necessary.

There was no wild alarmism about Ambassador Bullitt's recent remark, that the United States today is in just as great peril as France was one year ago. And look at France, now!

How It Grows.

Internal peril from the Nazi horror that has descended upon the world grows from a tiny seed and, once the growth has started, becomes a dangerous menace in short order.

It doesn't take many Nazi agents to start the sort of thing that is really playing into their hands. Such things as opposition—much of it opposition of well-meaning but fatuous innocents—to selective service for the army, opposition to sending material aid to Britain, opposition to the spending of money for defense armament for this country.

It is no use crying that this country needn't fight if it doesn't want to. Naturally. If a thug steps out of a dark alley and starts to cut you to pieces with a knife, you needn't fight if you don't want to. You can let him do his cutting unopposed, until you are dead. But most Americans would fight, rather than adopt the role of a bleating sheep.

It isn't necessary, for home defense, to get hysterical and go around persecuting innocent souls because you've gotten so wrought up you see an enemy spy behind every rosebush. You can help your home defense best by helping to educate in true Americanism and helping to disabuse the minds of misled neighbors of the Nazi-inspired complacency that now is such a danger.

Sunday, midday, in Macon was what is to be expected in mid-August. Hot. Terribly hot. And quiet.

There were so few people on the streets it caused remark, until the more perspicacious companion reminded that everybody was either at home preparing the Sunday dinner, or at church. Which was true. But the streets were uncannily empty.

I've always liked Macon, even though it is awfully hot there in midsummer. I always feel the heat worst in Augusta, Macon and Columbus of any places in Georgia.

But I've had some awfully good times in Georgia's central city. Parties and meetings and discussions. And political conventions. The lobbies and rooms of the Dempsey and the Lanier have been the scenes of some fascinating affairs.

I remember that night when we staged an impromptu parade and kidnaped two policemen—. But, on second thought, maybe that's best forgotten.

It isn't my place, of course, to advise the Macon or Bibb county authorities. But I've always thought it a shame that the road coming into Macon from Atlanta should have such a honky-tonk atmosphere. All those roadside enterprises and all those glaring signs make you feel as though you're coming into Coney Island, or some similar place, instead of into a beautiful and dignified city with a history of culture and graciousness.

On The Highway.

Saw the customary amount of wild driving on the highway, to and from Macon. One fellow came round a curve so fast his car skidded across the road on screaming tires and it seemed, for a moment, a smash was inevitable.

And there was the customary extra hazard caused by too slow drivers. Some guy and his family, or his girl, creeping along at 20 m. p. h. on the open highway with a parade of properly indignant drivers behind, watching for opportunity to get around and ahead. And taking greater and greater chances as irritation grew. I'm sure of one thing. The slow drivers constitute a greater highway menace than the too-fast guys.

Twenty-Five Years Ago.

From the news columns of Friday, August 20, 1915:

"London, August 20.—(12:10 a. m.)—The White Star liner Arabic was torpedoed and sunk on her way to New York by a German submarine at 9:15 o'clock Thursday morning southeast of Fastnet."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From the news columns of Wednesday, August 20, 1890:

"Through a friend in that city, The Constitution learned that The Daily News, a little paper which daily fatigues the patience and insults the intelligence of Mobile, has been vainly trying to say something smart about national politics and something disparaging about Atlanta."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Army Pay. NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Sometimes I wonder what would happen to the country if I were not around to offer suggestions out of my inexhaustible ignorance, but it was depressing to dwell on this gloomy, though inevitable, state of affairs, so, with this brief windup, I will sling my high swift and see what you can do with it.

My proposal is that the base pay of the enlisted soldier should be raised to $60 a month, rather than $30, the figure which has been proposed in the current discussion, because, for an army of a million men the cost wouldn't be so very much as we count money nowadays, and there is no department in which an equal amount would produce equal benefits. In the field of economics I am a quarryman rather than a sculptor, dealing in big, coarse figures which persons of more refinement can chisel down to a beautiful symmetry and detail. Using my simple expense-account arithmetic I estimate that the base pay of an army of a million soldiers at $60 a month would be $720,000,000 a year, only $360,000,000 more than the base pay of the same force at $30 a month. Of course, there would be considerable plusage in the way of extras, but those extras exist now and would carry over, anyway, so they are no part of my problem.

To Boost Morale. Now there is sure to be talk about the sordidness of the idea, that you cannot buy patriotism, but to that I would answer that regular soldiers, in fact the National Guard and draftees, too, when they are in the army, cannot escape a sense that they are poor folks on as little as $21 or $30 a month, and are driven to frequent low dumps for their pleasures and to feel a resentment, vague or acute, against civilians and their own estate. If this new army is to be composed of experts, whether in tinkering with the tripes of a gasoline engine or shooting guns, they should be paid on a scale which will permit them to get around decently in their free time, and, perhaps, lay up a little against the day when they are paid off. It doesn't seem possible to pay them regular AFL wages for their work, but an additional $360,000,000 or half-a-billion a year spent for their pay wouldn't break the country, and no two ways about it, money in kick does boost a man's morale.

What cruising radius can a man have on $21 or $30 a month, minus deductions? I am not going to make the mistake of speculating on the sort of pleasures that appeal to the enlisted soldier who ain't no plaster saint, but I will say that whatever they are, he is compelled to patronize the cheaper marts on the present pay, and won't be able to up his social scale much on a increase of $9 a month, or approximately $2.25 a week. Moreover, the present scale and the prejudice against paying soldiers more than tobacco money above their keep are a hangover from an old concept. As recently as 1910 police court judges around the country would sentence young bums to join the army or navy as an alternative to jail for the purpose of getting them out of town and, although neither service would accept a man under such conditions now, the pay roll still preserves the tradition that in their leisure time they rate no better company than they can find in spots frequented by the town rummies, male and female.

Can't Go In for Class. Soldiers don't have access to the homes of the civilians, because, again respecting the old tradition or superstition, the American civilians go for officers almost exclusively. Or am I wrong there? It is my impression that the enlisted soldier, when he goes out, is pretty well restricted to public places, and if that is so, then, obviously, on his pay, he can't go in for class.

Meaning no reflection on the quality of the present enlisted force, I suggest that a base pay of $60 a month would overcome the reluctance of men who think of army life in terms of social inferiority.

In addition to all of which it should be kept in mind that, eventually, by the precedent of the bonus and other bounties, the soldiers are going to get at least $60 a month, anyway. That being so, the best results can be obtained by paying it to them when it is important that they feel that they are not busted guys but somebodies.

By RALPH McGILL.

LOOK AWAY— Comes Monday and a couple of things which annoy me. Just two things.

On Sunday I read that Georgia was enlisting, on a population basis, ten men to one from the great population centers of the east. The same thing is true for the south in more or less the same ratio.

This is one of the things which makes my scalp burn. What about all the foreign population centers? Why aren't the Poles, the Lithuanians, the Rumanians, the Slovaks and all the others who have found this country good for a generation or so, enlisting men? I will admit this has a sort of reactionary ring to it. That suits me. At least, at this time it does. Maybe I'll regret it later. Perhaps there is an explanation for it.

But, right now, I want to know where they are. It is this sort of stuff which gives organizations such as the Ku Klux Klan some ammunition. They can wad that sort of stuff in their guns and shoot it in their silly publications.

And, pretty soon, when things get tough, the foreign centers will be taking it on the chin and yelling for the help of those who fight their battles. We will be fighting the battle of tolerance and of common sense. We will be forced to take off our coats and fight the daffy organizations which thrive on prejudice and which prostitute Americanism by selling it.

That's what burns me. I know that Pulaski, the great Pole, played a tremendous part in our history. And that many foreign soldiers came to us in times of stress and helped us.

Millions of persons have been poured into our melting pot. Now comes the appeal. One would think that the great cities, with their tremendous populations, would see a rush to the colors from the Germans, the Poles, the Lithuanians and all those from countries where liberty is no longer to be found and where minorities have no rights it all. I'd just like to know.

AND ANOTHER THING Another thing which gave me emotional indigestion over the week-end was that smug suit instituted in Illinois by the Communists.

They filed suit, asking the support of the courts of the United States, because their rights were not respected. What they were deprived of was their right to place their ticket on the ballot.

I can calm down and admit the Communist party is a political party and as such is guaranteed certain rights by the constitution of this country. In calm moments I will admit it is better to let them sound off than to suppress them.

Yet it does drive me almost to drink to consider their one purpose is to obtain a government which will abolish the very rights for which they sue. And that they seek to overthrow this government and substitute one in its place which would permit no opposition party and which would place before a firing squad any one advocating what they advocate.

Now and then it comes over me what a great thing this liberty is and how tough a thing it is to be able to take all the vicious crackpots and all the subversive plots and enemies it has.

But the smug insolence of the Communists, who shriek aloud for the very rights they seek to destroy, gives me an acute pain in the region of the umbilicus.

They and their blood brothers, the Nazis, would be the first to betray this country if the Germans were to seek to beat us. Or if the Japanese were to come. Just any enemy of this country would find them as able assistants.

I am a bit calmer now, if that is important, and I am willing for the boys to sue. I think the important thing is to keep our heads and to realize that only by maintaining our civil liberties in times of stress can we make them strong enough to survive.

MR. BILL BULLITT Mr. William Bullitt, our wandering ambassador, has warned us that Germany plans to attack us once England is conquered.

Well, maybe so. I doubt it. Not this winter, anyhow. But it is entirely possible and not improbable. Japan would like to get in on such a plan, knowing we aren't ready for two oceans. But, I doubt they are ready.

Mr. Bullitt also said the first German contingent was already in this country. Of that I am sure. We already have uncovered enough evidence to assure us of that fact. We have had some men in high places who were friendly to Hitler and who are assisting the German troops in this country. They are at work and ready to assist any plan the German high command may have. Mr. Bullitt was entirely correct on that score.

No one knows what we will do about it. There are so many amateur spy catchers bungling the jobs and trying to start witch hunts that one can't be sure. Good, tough teeth for the FBI would be best. And lots of cells in good, strong jails filled with them. Let them stay in jail at least long enough to holler for their right to get out and betray this country.

At any rate, those are the things which annoyed me on Monday.

The West Remained Wild so Long As Everybody Was Afraid To Offend Bad Men

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

The Japanese are making determined effort to drive out English and American citizens. They are jailing and abusing Englishmen in Japan. They have notified Americans to quit Japanese-occupied portions of China. They have announced that foreign teachers will be dismissed.

All of this is supposed to serve Hitler by keeping our attention fixed on Asia and thus lessening any temptation we might feel to help England.

Whatever the reason may be, it is clear that Japan's leaders are boldly doing the things they consider necessary to the welfare of their country, without regard for the opinions or interests of foreigners.

Are we less intelligent, less patriotic and less courageous than the Japanese?

It is common knowledge that over two hundred Japanese fishing boats, manned by naval reservists and subsidized by Japan, operate from California ports. These are 120-foot, high-powered boats with two-way radio, designed to be quickly and easily transformed into mine layers and torpedo boats.

Why, then, are they permitted to operate in American waters? They could be disposed of easily by means of a simple law requiring the operators to be American citizens.

Japan would solve the problem that way. Can't we be as sensible and courageous in protecting the interests of our country?

Consider the matter of compulsory military training. Other countries, finding it necessary, adopted it many years ago. Our highest army officers say it is necessary to our safety.

Yet many of our leaders oppose it—not because they think it unnecessary; not on the ground that our country can be made safe without it; but on the pretext that it violates liberty or is unfair. In short, they are playing politics. They are afraid of losing votes if they support it, or they hope to gain votes by opposing it.

Consider the matter of Communism. The Communist party is given place on our official national ballot. Would any other country grant such a privilege to a group serving a foreign power?

There is something rotten somewhere. Is it in our national character? Have we alone, of all great nations, become too timid and short-sighted and pusillanimous to act boldly in defense of our country?

VOTE FOR GEORGE Y. HARRELL FOR STATE PAROLE BOARD COMMISSIONER

Read What His Home Paper Says

FROM THE STEWART-WEBSTER JOURNAL.
WE INDORSE GEORGE Y. HARRELL
FOR GEORGIA PRISON AND PAROLE BOARD

Honorable George Y. Harrell, state senator of the 12th Senatorial district, better known by his hosts of friends as just plain George Harrell, Lumpkin lawyer, is a candidate for the Georgia Prison Board to succeed G. A. Johns, who is not seeking reelection.

George Harrell is a native Georgian, in fact, born and reared in Stewart county—his present home. He has served his community, his county and his state vigorously and unselfishly. He is one of the very few candidates in history offering for a state office from Stewart County.

Coming from a professional family of lawyers, Col. Harrell's father was city solicitor of Lumpkin for many years, his grandfather, Josiah Harrell, was a prominent lawyer in Webster county years ago, three of his sons are lawyers, one of those is a minister, two others hold business positions that require legal training.

Mr. Harrell is a straight-forward, honest, intelligent, civic-spirited man. His human sympathies exceed his pursuit of financial gain. He has always been a friend and counsel for the poor and oppressed. His integrity is respected by every professionl man and layman he has ever dealt with, and he deals fairly and squarely with his adversaries as well as his clients.

As a public servant, Col. Harrell twice served his county in the House of Representatives and has been elected to represent the 12th Senatorial District as State Senator for five terms. During his stewardship as a legislator he has made an enviable record and is one of the best known members of the General Assembly of Georgia.

He has been chairman of the Lumpkin Board of Education, a member of the Woodmen of the World, Knights of Pythias, Odd Fellows and the Lions Club. A Methodist, Mr. Harrell taught a Sunday school class for many years. His participation in every progressive enterprise in this section has identified him as a leader and promoter of the best interests of his people.

Col. Harrell is certainly well qualified for the commission. He has been a student of good government and public administration for many years. His special qualifications include a superior legal knowledge, a record of commendable public service, a man whose humanitarianism makes him a friend of man, woman, child and beast, a clean sportsman and an advocate of honesty, justice, service, non-partianship, safe and economic administration in public office.

If the people of the state of Georgia want a man whose capacities are equal to the duties of the office, whose sympathies are for the average man, whose life is directed by the dictates of an honest conscience, whose private and public life is not only a credit to his home county, but to the state of Georgia as well, then they should elect George Y. Harrell, Lumpkin lawyer, to the Prison and Parole Board of the State of Georgia.

Tells About Girl Who Is Manager Of Barber Shop

This is a story about a young woman with nerve. Except that she appears to weigh about 90 pounds on the hoof I might use a less elegant term. But whatever it is, she's got it. And I think she'll get by with it.

She was a manicure girl. She is still a manicure girl. But now she is also manager of a going concern. And managing it.

Her name is Helen Elliott and I've known her going on 12 years. She never manicured me because I never adopted the manicure habit. I'm told I should, but that's neither here nor there, as the fellow said who was trying to discover where the magician concealed the rabbit.

She worked all those years in the barber shop—a men's barber shop—in the Rhodes building on Marietta street. I never knew her maiden name but her last name has been Elliott since she married a railroad man a year or so ago.

The barber shop fell upon tough times. Business good, but a succession of managers, who quit for one reason of another. Only Uncle John Pittman stuck. Uncle John, a Spanish War veteran, has a habit of sticking. He has trimmed what's left of my hair for goin' on 15 years and always asks me whether I like my sideburns large and handsome or trimmed down to just a mere suggestion. I always tell him and he goes ahead according to his own fancy. Uncle John is my informant on this narrative. It should read, "By John Pittman, as told to Dudley Glass."

Helen Steps In.

Anyway, the barber shop needed a manager. Uncle John said he was a darn good barber but he never had managed anything and it was too late to start now.

So up spake Mrs. Helen Elliott, blonde, slim and gentle as a gazelle.

"I'll manage it," she observed. The barbers' verdict was a unanimous o. k.

It's quite a responsibility. She must pay rent on the shop and equipment and the light bill and such overhead. And she must depend for income upon her split out of the barbers' receipts. And her own fees. She told me a day or two ago she was getting by fine, thank you. And telling the barbers where to get off. No, she doesn't tell them how to cut hair, but she does run the shop. I might add that they don't toss any monkey wrenches into the machinery. Certainly Uncle John wouldn't because he feels he has raised Helen from a pup.

Mrs. Elliott, I am told, is not the only feminine barber shop manager in town but the others work through a male deputy. And there's a shop on Forsyth street in which all the operators are women, and very neat and cool they look through the open front door. I haven't been inside yet. I'm a timid creature.

Home From Travels.

Chess Abernathy, editor of Otis Brumby's Cobb County Times, came home from South America last week, with Mrs. Abernathy. They'd been down there five months, jumping all over the map.

How come a newspaperman can do that? The Rosenwald Foundation. He won a fellowship which paid all expenses. For study of affairs.

Well, Chess is the kind of young fellow who wouldn't consider such a trip as a junket for pleasure. He really would study. He'd find out what it was about. He'll be a better editor and a better American.

One trouble with a lot of us is that we never go anywhere or see anything or learn how other people live and what they think—except from what we read in the papers.

The Rosenwald Foundation did a wise thing in picking newspapermen for those traveling fellowships. Because the average young fellow, no matter how much he has learned, has no audience to tell it to. The newspaperman has.

About Mr. Bass.

Emory P. Bass, of Valdosta, has announced for congress from that district and the Valdosta Times, giving him a fine boost, refers to him as a "railroad executive."

It hasn't been so many years since that would have damned him eternally.

The railroad executive and the railroad ticket agent and the railroad employe who handled a freight shipment were so high and mighty they could tell anybody to go to hell—and frequently did. You could take it or leave it. But if you wanted to go anywhere or ship anything you had to take it.

Different now! The railroads actually ask for business, passenger and freight. Their employes have studied the art of courtesy. Those who just couldn't learn have passed out of the picture.

It's none of my business who's sent to congress from the eighth district. But the Times paints a picture of Mr. Bass as a live wire, a good citizen, a hard worker in his church and an excellent singer in the choir. And a darn good Democrat. And so, with all respect to his rivals in the field, I venture to wish him good luck.

Power Head Is Bewildered By Fanfare

Successor to Willkie Is Guest of Arkwright Here.

Justin Rice Whiting, new president of Commonwealth and Southern Corporation, is an amiable, gray-haired, middle-sized man who is more than a little bewildered by all the publicity he is getting since he followed Wendell Willkie, the Republican Presidential candidate, to the presidency of the big utilities company.

Whiting, who jumps when photographers' flash bulbs go off, figures that it's all because of Willkie's prominence, and he halfway wishes that he could have slid inconspicuously into the driver's seat without all the fanfare.

Learning Fast.

He is learning fast, though, and now greets the press affably and with ease, answering questions quickly and in a straightforward manner, a little like all lawyers, which he has always been, and most tycoons, which he has just become.

His career closely parallels that of Willkie. Both were born in small midwestern towns, Willkie in Indiana, Whiting in Michigan. Both got law degrees. Both practiced a while in small towns, and both moved to larger fields as their talents broadened, Willkie to Akron, Whiting to Detroit.

Both mastered the complexities of the legal end of the utilities business and both were called to New York to become partners with that famous veteran of utilities practice, John C. Weadock, Commonwealth and Southern's chief counsel.

Inherited Chair.

When Wendell Willkie moved up to the presidency, Justin Rice Whiting sat in the chair he had used while counsel.

"So," he explains, modestly, "when Willkie resigned to make his race, I just sort of naturally inherited the president's chair, I guess."

There, Whiting thinks, the parallels of the two careers cease. He has no political ambitions. And, though friends in letters have pointed out that he too might some time be a presidential candidate, he sees in the suggestion only friendship and courtesy.

"All I'm interested in right now is doing a good job in the job I have," he said.

Working Hard.

He's working hard at it. Long in an office, in touch with the far-flung power empire mainly through the legal end, right now he's on the road looking at dams and dynamos, steam plants and high lines. His presence here is part of that tour, and he has been visiting plants of the Georgia Power Company, the big company's Georgia subsidiary, since last Saturday.

He was guest of Preston Arkwright, president of Georgia Power, at a dinner at a hotel last night, where officials of the company from throughout the state were present.

Of power's present situation, he spoke briefly. TVA is now a reality and the long battle with the government which brought Wendell Willkie to national prominence, is a closed book.

Power Is Ready.

The SEC probe seems dormant. He doesn't know what's being done, nor what will be the outcome of it all, and he doesn't seem greatly worried.

Right now the job is to keep building to keep pace with industry. War industries are going to call heavily on the power folks, and there'll be no bottle-neck in his field. The power will be there to turn the wheels when the time comes to turn them full speed.

Whiting, like Willkie, is a former Democrat. In fact, he was a delegate to the national convention that named Roosevelt in 1932.

He won't vote for Roosevelt again, though.

And, though he doesn't talk politics for publication, he does say this, with conviction.

"Wendell Willkie was a tower of strength in the utilities field. He will be a tower of strength in whatever job he holds—even the presidency of the United States."

WANTS CAPITAL MOVED.

GRAY, Ga., Aug. 19.—(AP)—This candidate for the legislature is popular in Macon now, although only Jones countians will vote on him. He proposed that the state capital be moved from Atlanta to Macon. (P. S. Macon for years has urged such a transfer.)

Wage-Hour Exemptions Stayed by AFL Protests

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(AP) Administrator Philip B. Fleming of the wage-hour division said today that a proposed 14-week seasonal exemption from wage and hour regulations for country, subterminal and mill grain warehouses had been stayed because of the filing of objections.

The objections came from the flour, cereal, feed and grain elevator workers and the American Federation of Grain Processors Council, both AFL affiliates. A hearing will be held in the fall.

Tragic Conditions in France Told in Letters to Atlantans

'Miserable' After Being Deprived of Liberties, Mother Writes; 'It Is Terrible To See,' Girl Student's Note to Friend Declares.

Poignant word pictures of conditions in present-day France were disclosed in Atlanta yesterday through two letters.

One was from a mother writing to her children. The other came from a young girl, a student, writing to a friend.

As both the writers are still in German-occupied territory, their names are being withheld, due to fear of possible Nazi reprisals.

The letters are eloquent, and tell their own stories. The following is the letter from the mother:

"Dear Children:

"Your letter took 25 days to reach us. You probably did not receive my last letter as you do not speak of it at all and I am still uncertain you will receive this one now that practically all France is occupied by the Germans.

"Yes, we wanted to write you a very long letter and give you more details, but now we are not at liberty or free to speak our thoughts even on paper, but know only that we are very, very unhappy since the occupation by Germany. They entered the town June 21 and have occupied all Brittany, even to the very small sections.

Germans Rule Country.

"All Lorient is occupied by more than 1,500 to 2,000 German soldiers. It is they that rule the whole country and the chief of command for Brittany is established at Rennes. They are in all towns of any importance. What are we to become?

"We can't help it and we find ourselves very unhappy and miserable. German money is used now at a rate of 20 francs for a mark. All the coast from Bordeaux to Dunkerque is occupied and fortified.

"As for the radio, for us it doesn't exist any more. We are absolutely forbidden to listen to English broadcasts at the penalty of death. Who could tell we would come to this?

"Yesterday was July 14, the day of sorrow for France. The German communique forbade the people of France to celebrate in any way their national holiday, especially not to raise the French flag at any place.

Naval Base Bombed.

"Of course, the naval base at Lorient has been bombed and set afire. The Germans are trying to build it back, but the English destroy it as they rebuild it. There were 4,000 dead in the civil population at Rennes when the town was bombed during the invasion.

"When you happen to go in a shop and the saleslady is waiting on you, if a German soldier enters he makes the saleslady drop whoever she is waiting on and wait on him and gives you whatever he pleases for the merchandise and selects always the best. They are ransacking some of the stores of jewelry, silk underwear and expensive candies and fruits.

"The sidewalks, as you know, are very narrow and if you happen to meet a German soldier on the sidewalk he makes you get down to let him pass. You don't get your mail until it is read and approved and stamped by the German authorities.

"Of course, we are out of sugar, have no coffee, no soap, nor oil and no coal. Most of our wheat fields have been destroyed."

Student's Letter.

The following is an excerpt from the letter of the student to her friend:

"It has been such a long time since I have received news of you. At this present time I am on vacation. Schools were closed June 16 instead of June 14. They are serving to house the refugees coming from the north and Paris.

"A lot of them left, some on bicycles, others afoot. Many of them starved during the trip. The first ones that passed in the little towns bought food but the last ones did not find anything left. It is terrible to see. There are so many children and so many old people.

"On the roads you find clothing and suitcases that have been abandoned by those who left afoot. They thought they could carry it all the way but after a time found it too heavy and left it as they lost their strength to go on.

"It is beyond explanation how many automobiles are abandoned on the highways. Papa carried some refugees to Nemours near Paris and he saw more than 200 cars left behind. But the Germans charge themselves to pick them up and put them in parking places for future use.

Many Drop Dead.

"On both sides of the road Papa saw thousands of people drop dead from exhaustion, hunger, and wounds. Some were German soldiers and others French. It was there they were resisting the Germans, between Tours and Nemours.

"We had the Germans at La-Rochelle and it is they that command. They buy a lot in all the stores and most of the stores are closed to prevent looting. For a time we didn't have potatoes in the markets. Everything is sky high.

"You, my dear, are in an excellent and safe ground in America. We may have an invasion by the English one of these days.

"The port of LaPallice has been bombarded and the cruiser Foucauld which was in dry dock has been completely bombed. They dropped magnetic bombs on the Champlain which was outside of the port at LaPallice. We have to be alert several times a day and several times at night. It is not amusing, especially at night when we have to get up and run in the parks for shelter."

Grady Hospital Is Death Trap, Says J. L. Wells

Trustee, Speaking for Bond Issue, Praises Staff of Institution.

James L. Wells, of the Grady hospital board of trustees, says the hospital has the staff necessary to become the greatest medical center in the south, but its plant he described as a "death trap." He spoke at the weekly meeting of the Rotary Club yesterday, representing T. K. Glenn, chairman of the board, and urged the passage of the $2,000,000 Atlanta bond issue September 4 for the hospital, schools and fire department.

A unique demonstration by students in the Junior League speech school also was presented, showing the work of the teachers and volunteer Junior Leaguers in teaching young children, nearly totally deaf, to speak. Following short demonstrations of methods of teaching feeling the sound by placing the hand on the teacher's face, and one of lip-reading, seven-year-old Jerry Sanders, who less than two years ago was unable to utter a sound, went to the microphone and made a brief talk.

Mrs. William Hamm, director of the school, was assisted in the demonstration by Miss Mary Lou Costello and Miss Gay Hiem, teachers.

Good Morning—By Louie D. Newton

"Yet is their strength labor" is the text of the full-page editorial sermon in The Saturday Evening Post, issue of August 10th. Editor Wesley Winans Stout would probably demur at the suggestion of being called a preacher, but just the same he preached a sermon in his editorial of August 10th, even to the taking of a text.

The theme of the editorial is Work—work as divinely ordained and commanded by God. Mr. Stout believes that the command of God is still in effect, despite any scheme of man to set it aside. He says:

"Legally and artfully we have lightened the yoke; yet it may be that God's second arrangement with Adam shall not be so easily broken . . . "

He goes on to show how France undertook to flee from the "curse" of work, adding, "Now France is a slave nation." Acknowledging "the magnificent social gains of the century" in Great Britain's flight from the idea of work, he adds, "Now Great Britain is fighting for her life."

He then examines the history of Russia, Italy, Germany, and Japan, showing how they, "the lean and hungry nations," worked all the harder and consumed still less and sold goods over all tariff barriers, using the money they received to buy the materials they needed for the war machines they were building.

"Work inherits the earth. The power of the aggressor is idea externalized by work. The dictator demands labor. Note where it was that the social malady of unemployment became chronic. Not in the lean and hungry nations. It was the problem of the three rich countries, Britain, France and the United States, and the most acute in the richest of all, our own. Only a rich country can afford unemployment. . . .

"The emergency is one that involves our destiny, it may be our survival as a free people; it calls us to work harder, perhaps, than we have ever worked before. . . . Would that it were a world without war. . . . The reality is bitter. We cannot buy defense—there is nobody to buy it from. We cannot produce the ships and planes and guns and machine equipment in time, or at all, unless we are willing to work harder. . . . We cannot produce it by merely voting billions. It can be produced only by more work.

"Above any law that we can make, there is a jealous law of work. It was passed at the gate of the Garden of Eden, with man on his way out. His entire history since then has been his struggle to overcome it. He has had the cunning to invent for himself a race of mechanical slaves, and still he cannot beat God's law regarding work."

Whether you agree with the preacher or not, you must admit he is preaching. Selah.

U. S. Transport Is in 'Danger,' German Warns

Area Through Which Ship Is Passing Said To Be Mined.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—The German embassy said late today the army transport American Legion was probably now in an area of "grave danger" from uncontrolled mines, but added that it was safe from any attack by German naval or air forces.

An embassy spokesman, Dr. Wilhelm Tannenberg, indicated to reporters that the area through which the American ship was passing off the north coast of Scotland may have been mined by Germany since the ship sailed from Petsamo, Finland, last Friday and Germany declared a "total blockade" against Great Britain.

"We are absolutely convinced," Tannenberg told a press conference held at the embassy, "that German military authorities will not in any way—even unintentionally—threaten the American Legion. But we are concerned about the danger of mines which we no longer can control."

He questioned the assertion of the State Department that this was the safest course that could be found by American army and navy officials for the American Legion, expressing a personal opinion that the ship could have traveled farther north on a course taking it either south or north of Iceland.

Sumner Welles, acting secretary of state, told a press conference earlier in the day that the American Legion was pursuing the safest course that could be determined by the Navy and War Departments. What this course was, however, was not disclosed by the government.

Dr. Tannenberg said the German government was not consulted as to the safest course, but was advised by the United States only of the course that would be taken.

Meanwhile, passengers aboard the American Legion are unaware of Germanys' warning that the ship is proceeding through dangerous, newly mined waters at its own risk, Mrs. Florence Jaffray Harriman, United States minister to Norway, informed the Associated Press in New York this afternoon in a wireless message from the ship.

Responding to an inquiry made Saturday, when Germany issued the warning, Mrs. Harriman's message read:

"Your message first intimation of newly mined area. No one aboard informed."

WOMAN FLIER SPEAKS.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 19.—(AP) Distinguished as one of the few women presidents of a flying club, Miss Betty Allen took the civic club spotlight here this week as guest of the Exchange Club. She directs the activites of the Savannah Aero Club.

U. S. SHIP IN "DANGER AREA"—The U. S. refugee ship American Legion is nearing the waters of the "total blockade" proclaimed against the British Isles by Germany. The German government has warned that it will not be responsible for the safety of the ship. The American Legion, en route to New York from Petsamo, Finland, will pass near the Island of Rona (4). Germany claims that her new mine fields, belting the British Isles, close entrances to Irish Sea (2 and 3) and already have destroyed three ships near Isle of Man (1).

British Dump HugeBombs on German Bases

heavens like Roman candles. The attack seemed to extend along several miles of coast on both sides of Boulogne.

Germany's storm of bombs abated mysteriously yesterday, but Britain, aware that life or death of her empire may be decided in the skies in one fateful week, took new precautions in the effort to make herself impregnable.

With even the Luftwaffe lull indicating that a Nazi attempt to deliver a direct, crushing blow may be near, the whole island kingdom was decreed a defense zone and British airmen struck wholesale at the sources of Nazi might.

One German bomber was reported shot down during the morning in the southwest and a lone Nazi raider demolished a house in a southeast coast town.

Weather Ideal.

Observers on the Channel coast said the weather there was ideal for bombers and could advance no theory for the holiday.

Some, however, expressed belief the Germans might need time to fill the gaps a week's fighting had left in their squadrons and others speculated that the Germans might be marshaling their forces for a big push.

(Germany, however, promised new aerial attacks against Britain that will make the present raids appear "comparatively puny." German quarters declared that when "conditions are suitable our real attack will come," the United Press reported.)

German reports said large formations of Nazi air scouts had reconnoitered southern England yesterday, presumably to photograph the effect of previous raids and mark off targets for new ones.

What the Germans called "armed reconnaissance" came amid indications that Germany is readying her armed might for the blow which the Nazis hope will knock out England and end the war.

There were indications that the huge assault might come this week.

Warning on 'Chutists.

Just as he had warned during the invasion of the Lowlands and France, Adolf Hitler informed Great Britain through Swiss diplomatic channels that the British must treat his parachute troops according to international law or he would visit reprisals upon British aviators in German prison camps.

Parachute troops played an important role in the western European fighting and Britain has organized thousands of civilians in home defense corps to meet that threat.

Another intimation that a great attempt against England is in the wind was this expression by authoritative spokesmen:

"Just give us three days of good weather."

Warns Against Killing.

Repeated reports have told of German forces massed at French Channel ports, impatiently waiting for the air force to "soften up" the British.

The Hitler warning on parachute troops asserted it would violate international law for civilians to kill these forces, but said they might be captured and held for the army.

Germany said English forces need not wear regular British uniforms to be classed among the regular army troops, but they must have some identifying marks, such as arm bands.

Summarizing the last seven days of air siege, the air ministry said British fighter planes had shot down 513 Nazi raiders, including 377 bombers or fighter-bombers—73 per cent of their bag.

This included only German planes downed in combat. With those destroyed by antiaircraft fire, a tabulation of figures in British communiques shows a total of 567 destroyed German planes was claimed between August 12 and 18.

Basel, Switzerland, advices said British bombers attacked German armament plants along Lake Constance in daring predawn raids, including the Zeppelin works at Friedrichshafen and a big aluminum factory across the Rhine from the Swiss town of Rheinfelden.

The far-roving raiders lit the scene with flares, then swooped low to drop their explosives in the face of heavy German anti-aircraft fire.

Observers on the Swiss side of the Rhine noted fires and direct hits on the aluminum works, which have been humming night and day producing metal for Nazi airplane parts.

Plants Bombed.

Other RAF squadrons, in uncounted numbers, blasted the German industrial district on the north side of Lake Constance, inadvertently dropping a few bombs along the Swiss shore.

A Swiss high command communique said that there were no casualties on Swiss soil, but that telephone and telegraph lines were broken.

Air-raid warnings sounded three times during the night at Geneva and Lausanne, indicating that still other waves of bombers droned across Switzerland into northern Italy.

The Italian high command acknowledged that RAF raiders attacked Milan, Turin and Cuneo in north Italy's big industrial region.

The Swiss high command called the flight "again a clear, intentional violation of the neutral air zone."

The ministry of home security called its order to make all Britain a defense area merely a "precautionary measure" involving no new infringement on Britons' liberties.

However, it makes them liable at any moment to "any measures which might become urgently necessary through enemy landings by air or sea to be introduced without delay in any part of the country in which they are required."

Previously, such regulations had applied only in a 20-mile-deep strip of seaboard from the Scottish border to the southern English coast.

An insight to the British diplomatic front was expected in the House of Commons today when Winston Churchill makes his first full public review of British foreign relations since becoming prime minister.

American-British talks regarding acquisition by the United States of defense bases on British soil in the Western Hemisphere and former President Hoover's suggestion that the British blockade be opened for food for German-occupied continental nations will be among his topics, it was believed.

Atlanta Native Missing Since French Defeat

Joseph Francis Gatins Was Member of Army, Mother Writes.

Joseph Francis Gatins, 25-year-old member of a prominent Atlanta family, has been missing in France since June 10, Mrs. Albert E. Thornton, of 105 West Pace's Ferry road, a close friend of the Gatins family, was informed yesterday.

In a letter from Paris to Mrs. Thornton, young Gatins' mother, Mrs. Joseph F. Gatins, said the youth had been unheard of since the armistice with Germany. He was serving in the French army with the 59th regiment of infantry.

The youth was born in Atlanta, but has lived in Paris since he was three and a half years old. He visited here several years ago.

Mrs. Gatins also reported her brother, Count Charles de Sombrieul, is a prisoner in Germany.

Irate Senators Attack Bullitt For Address

Charge Him With Something 'Little Short of Treason.'

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(AP) Charging William C. Bullitt, the American ambassador to France, with something "very little short of treason," an indignant group of senators hotly attacked the diplomat today for his speech at Philadelphia yesterday.

Bullitt, warning that the country was in danger of German invasion, advocated conscription and urged that destroyers be made available to Great Britain.

One after another, the senators arose in the course of the Senate's debate on the peacetime draft, to accuse Bullitt of urging that the United States enter the war, of seeking to promote a dictatorship for this country, and of suspiciously close and friendly relations with Soviet Russia. And, they added an assertion that Bullitt's speech was "not only approved, but inspired by the State Department."

(Bullitt's speech was mimeographed and distributed through the State Department, the United Press said. Copies of it reportedly were sent to the German and French embassies on August 16. Diplomatic experts said it was one of few occasions in their memory when an accredited representative of this government has openly criticized a friendly power.)

Another defense development saw the Senate appropriations committee quickly approving a record, or near-record, appropriation of $5,008,169,277 for beginning the construction of a "two-ocean navy" and providing equipment for an army of 1,200,000 men. Downtown, meanwhile, the War Department reported that army recruiting, steadily rising since last May, reached a peak of 8,605 enlistments during the week of August 11 to 18.

Doug Fairbanks' Niece To Wed Screen Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Lucille Fairbanks, 22, actress-niece of the late Douglas Fairbanks, announced her engagement today to Edward Crump, screen writer, formerly of Shreveport, Louisiana.

The marriage will take place in October.

OUT OF STEP—Nor are they, you might say, walking on air. In fact, it'll be a while now before they range the air lanes again. The youthful three in the center, prominently flaunting their iron crosses, are captive German airmen in London, and they show their disregard for their captors by being, to a man, out of step with the Britishers.

Six, Including 4 Georgia Fliers, Die in Crashes

Son of R.G. LeTourneau Among Victims of Air Mishaps.

Six persons, including four Georgians, were dead yesterday after two air crashes—one an army bomber and the other a private craft. Both crashes occurred outside the state.

The dead:

Donald Philip LeTourneau, 19, and Alton Vance Morrison, 23, both of Toccoa, whose plane fell in a nose dive atop Beaver Dam mountain near Canton, N. C.

Second Lieutenant James H. Griffin, 27, army pilot, of Asheville, N. C., stationed at Barksdale Field, Shreveport, La.

First Lieutenant Hubert T. Elders, 33, of Columbia, S. C.

Private E. E. Quinker, of Valdosta, Ga.

Private Daniel C. Johnston, of Elberton, Ga.

Crash in Louisiana.

The B-12 army bomber carrying the two officers and two enlisted men crashed into an open field and exploded seven miles southwest of Ruston, La., while they were en route back to Barksdale Field after a routine flight to Asheville.

All except Lieutenant Griffin were burned to death inside the plane. Griffin was crushed to death when his parachute failed to open after he bailed out.

Lon Stevens, of Ruston, who watched the bomber's crippled flight and crash, said it passed over Ruston, flying low, headed toward Barksdale Field, 70 air line miles away.

"The plane began circling and, a few miles west of here, dropped downward, then scared and continued circling," he said. "Just before the crash, the plane went down, barely missing a school building, shot upward again, then plunged to earth."

Wreckage Scattered.

The explosion, he said, lighted the countryside and scattered wreckage over three acres.

Other witnesses said a flare was dropped as the plane, with only one engine running, sought a landing place.

In Johnson's pocket was a fragment of a telegram addressed to Mrs. C. H. Johnson, of Elberton, saying: "Will arrive ——." The rest of the message was burned away.

Morrison and LeTourneau, the latter a son of R. G. LeTourneau, nationally known machinery manufacturer and businessman evangelist, were en route from Toccoa to Jefferson City, Mo., when their plane crashed.

State Highway Patrolman J. A. Sullins quoted several witnesses as saying the LeTourneau plane went into a dive, but had no information as to the cause of the crash.

Young LeTourneau, married only about four months ago, was employed in his father's Toccoa plant. He is survived by his parents, his wife, a sister and four brothers.

The elder LeTourneau, widely known as an aviation enthusiast, makes frequent business and evangelistic trips by plane.

'Private Affairs' Plays at Capitol

"Private Affairs," new comedy which opened Sunday at the Capitol theater, is an entertaining film chiefly recommended for the comedy work of Roland Young and Hugh Herbert.

The plot deals with the old story of love conquering family prejudice, and the action is against the background of staid Boston. Directed by Al Rogell, the picture has lots of speed and humorous touches.

The romance is handled by Nancy Kelly and Robert Cummings, while others in the cast include Montague Love, Jonathan Hale and G. P. Huntley Jr. Young and Herbert make an outstanding team and give the film most of its lift. Short subjects complete the bill.—L. F.

Woll Urges I. T. U. Reunion With AFL

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 19.—(AP) The statement that the only way the United States can compete with totalitarian powers in Europe is through settlement of differences by rival labor organizations was made before the International Typographical Union today.

Matthew Woll, first vice president of the International Photo-Engravers' Union, said this in proposing that the ITU, meeting here in its 84th annual convention, again consider reunion with the American Federation of Labor.

British Leave Somaliland to Italian Army

forces which might attempt a coordinated squeeze on Egypt and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan with Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's Italian army in Libya, on the west.

Withdrawal was decided on, the British announcement said, as an alternative to reinforcing the Somaliland garrison with reserves who were needed elsewhere.

"All guns except two lost in the early stages of the action have been embarked," it said. "A great part of the material stores has also been evacuated and the remainder destroyed. Our wounded have been safely brought away."

The withdrawal was effected from Berbera, capital and chief port of Somaliland, under heavy Italian attack by tank, artillery and aircraft.

(Italian reports, which said earlier that the British were taking to their ships at Berbera, gave the British strength in Somaliland as about 7,000, mostly Rhodesians and Indians.)

African Fight Continues.

British land, sea and air forces continue fighting the Fascist legions on two other African fronts—on the Ethiopian-British Kenya border, where Italian columns have driven some 50 miles into British territory, and the Egyptian-Libyan border, where activity thus far has been confined to air bombings, small raids by both sides and heavy British naval bombardment of Italian bases.

An air attack yesterday on the airdrome at Addis Ababa, Ethiopian capital, destroyed four hangars and started a fire, the RAF command said.

The fate of the Italian stone Fort Capuzzo, shelled along with Bardia, remained undisclosed. Fascist troops were reported to have withdrawn from it, but whether it was destroyed was not known.

A British naval flier who operated with the navy in the attack said "as shells exploded everything became covered with sand and Fort Capuzzo just disappeared." He did not clarify that statement.

The British, however, expect a major Italian drive on this front shortly, aimed at the all-important Suez canal.

Fourth Defeat.

Somaliland was the fourth front from which the British were shoved clear back to their ships in the last five months. First was in Norway, then Flanders and France.

This latest reversal, however, was blamed squarely on the collapse of France.

"The original Allied dispositions in Somaliland," the British communique said, "were based upon a scheme of close Franco-British cooperation. Under this scheme the French forces at Jibuti (French Somaliland to the north) were to hold the right flank, the pivot of the whole position.

"With the sudden secession of the French government from participation in further hostilities, a new and grave situation was created. More than half of the available Allied force have been neutralized and it became immediately necessary to decide on the most effective measures for dealing with the emergency."

Finding it more advisable to hold reinforcements where they could be "more important to our immediate war effort" than in Somaliland and spurning the easy course of "immediate and unresisting evacuation," the British said they chose a third alternative which "has now been successfully completed—with conspicuous skill and bravery against greatly superior strength."

Canada Creates Naval, Military Posts in U. S.

Minister Declines To Say If Nation Will Get American Warships.

OTTAWA, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Following up the linking of United States and Canadian defenses by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King, Canada tonight created the new positions of naval and military attaches at Washington.

Captain Victor G. Brodeur, Pacific coast commander of the Royal Canadian navy, was appointed naval attache; and Colonel H. F. G. Letson, of Vancouver, military attache.

Navy Minister Angus Macdonald said the action was not to be interpreted as having resulted from the weekend conferences of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

Navy Minister Macdonald also mentioned at a press conference today that Commodore H. E. Reid, naval commander of the Canadian Atlantic coast, was visiting Newfoundland with a party led by Air Minister C. G. Power.

Asked whether some disused United States destroyers might be turned over to the Canadian navy, Macdonald would say only that the Canadian navy had enough personnel to man several more destroyers if they were available.

three patrol vessels under construction and nearing completion.

Orders have been placed, the Canadian naval ministry announced, for a fleet of motor torpedo boats which are being rushed to completion. Their launching will be at an early date. They will be of the type of small, swift vessel that in the present war has gone far to revolutionize the science of coastal patrol and defense—small boat armed with torpedoes and capable of a top speed of 50 knots.

It is understood that they will be placed in service on both the Atlantic and the Pacific coasts.

Today naval sources disclosed impressive statistics of the expansion of the dominion's fighting force on the high seas.

Compared with a year ago, and boasting a strength of 10,000 officers and men, the navy is, defense authorities say, six times greater than a year ago.

In the course of a year, the dominion's navy has increased from 15 to 113 vessels, with 95 additional keels laid down and due to be completed within the coming year. Included in the new motor torpedo boats are two destroyers, announced during the last session of parliament and now approaching readiness in a shipbuilding yard in Britain.

Canadian shipbuilding yards are working day and night upon the fleet's construction program. Upwards of 15,000 men, it is estimated in government circles, are being given employment directly, thousands more indirectly.

Official sources indicated that Canada is prepared to discharge any additional responsibilities that may be assigned her under the new defense accord with Washington. If a situation arose where the United States desired to have the Dominion man American destroyers for Atlantic or Pacific coastal patrol, the navy was said in informed quarters to be ready.

C. R. Wickard Nominated to Wallace's Post

F. D. R. Accepts Resignation of Secretary of Agriculture.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 19.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today accepted the resignation of Henry A. Wallace as Secretary of Agriculture, freeing his vice presidential running mate to begin active campaigning for the New Deal on September 5.

Claude R. Wickard, of Indiana, Undersecretary of Agriculture, was nominated by the President to succeed Wallace.

The secretary had informed his chief in a letter of resignation that he believed thoroughly in Mr. Roosevelt's "unique capacities to lead the American people in these troublous times, when experience and wisdom are so essential." Therefore, he said, he approached the work of the campaign with eagerness.

In response, the President asserted:

"You and I are content to leave determination of the issues in the campaign this year to the calm judgment of the voters. Under our form of government there is no higher arbitrament than the bar of public opinion."

Mr. Roosevelt disclosed that Wallace had been assigned the job of devoting his "time and talents exclusively to an interpretation of your agricultural program to the American people."

Wickard immediately announced that, if confirmed by the Senate, he would continue the Wallace policies.

A former Indiana farmer who has been active in the administration's agricultural program since its beginning, he was at Biloxi, Miss., when word reached him that President Roosevelt had sent his name to the Senate.

Monsignor J. P. Hurley Is Appointed Bishop

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Aug. 19. (AP)—Monsignor Joseph P. Hurley, a native of Cleveland who now is attached to the Vatican as aide to the papal secretary of state, will become the sixth bishop of the historic Catholic diocese of St. Augustine.

His appointment to succeed the late Bishop Patrick Barry was announced in Washington, D. C., by the Most Rev. Amleto G. Cicognani, apostolic delegate to the United States. The announcement merely stated he had been named by Pope Pius XII.

No Klan and Bund Alliance---Colescott

Alignment of the Ku Klux Klan with the German-American Bund "couldn't be achieved any more than one with Communists and Negroes," James A. Colescott, the Klan's imperial wizard, said yesterday in a prepared statement.

Commenting on a Klan rally at a Bund camp at Andover, N. J., Colescott said the Klan "denounced the Bund and opposed it for years and had urged congress to dissolve it. . . . Why, it would be suicide for anyone to attempt to ally the Klan and Bund. At least 95 per cent of the Klan membership would resign if such an attempt were made."

He said he considered selection of the Bund camp for the Klan rally "a grievous mistake" but that he had approved it after the lease was made because it contained a provision giving the Klan complete control over the program.

Hungary, Rumania Split Over Demand

TURNU-SEVERIN, Rumania, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The Hungarian-Rumanian dispute over Transylvania appeared near a deadlock tonight.

Rumanian negotiators, rejecting Hungary's demands for nearly two-thirds of the agriculturally rich province, offered counter-proposals which the Hungarians apparently regarded as far from satisfactory.

In negotiations with Bulgaria at Craiova, however, there appeared every indication that an agreement will be speedily concluded by which Rumania will accede to virtually all Bulgarian demands and yield a good section of southern Dobruja.

Postage-Free Mail Offered Prisoners

Americans may send individual packages to prisoners of war in any belligerent nation through the American Red Cross postage free by the United States Post Office Department, if they have detailed knowledge of the location of the prisoner of war. The mere assumption that a missing relative is a prisoner of war in a certain country will not be sufficient reason for the acceptance of the package.

Interested persons may apply to the Red Cross chapter, 86½ Luckie street, and obtain full instructions on how to proceed. The information required before a package will be accepted by the post office is, name and number of prisoner, designation of prison camp, and the country in which the camp is located.

Salary Classifications Approved by Council

Salary classifications for 2,800 nonschool employes of the city government were approved yesterday by city council and sent to Mayor Hartsfield for his sanction.

The list carried a reclassification for 154 employes to which members of the city personnel board declined to agree. Twenty-seven other changes bore the approval of the board. There was no debate on the matter when it was presented as a report from the finance committee.

Ruth Plunkett Gives Barbecue for Children

Nearly 40 youngsters from the Atlanta Child's Home were entertained yesterday when they were the guests of Miss Ruth Plunkett, daughter of the late "Andy" Plunkett, famous for his barbecue.

Before Mr. Plunkett's death about a year ago, he promised to treat the underprivileged children at the home to a barbecue. Miss Plunkett fulfilled her father's invitation and was co-hostess at the outing.

Special Envoy Taylor Plans To Leave Vatican

ROME, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Friends of Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's special envoy to the Vatican, said today that he was leaving for the United States this week and there was doubt whether he would return to Rome because of his health.

Taylor, who is convalescing from an operation, plans to leave with Mrs. Taylor by plane August 23 for Lisbon and to sail thence for New York August 29. He is expected to have a farewell audience with Pope Pius.

Atlantans Attend Mission Parley

C. Mrs. Brown is the former Isabel McCain, daughter of Dr. James R. McCain, president of Agnes Scott College.

They will leave August 31 from Seattle for Japan. Among the other missionaries who will resume foreign mission duty this fall are Mr. and Mrs. William F. Junkin Jr., of Charlestown, W. NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(AP)—War news—or lack of it—received the principal blame today for a virtually stalemated stock market and one of the slowest sessions on record.

The list jogged along unevenly from the start and finished with slight gains and losses about evenly divided at the close. Numerous issues held to Saturday's final quotations and a wide assortment never appeared on the ticker tape.

Transfers of 129,650 shares compared with 312,300 last Friday and were the smallest for any full day since 1916. In that year only 540 individual issues were listed on the stock exchange against 1,233 at the beginning of 1940. On this basis, some estimated the volume actually as a historical low. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up .1 of a point at 41.2.

While Wall Street seemed to believe the chances of the British to repel the Nazis were growing better, even this slightly bullish factor seemed to have scant influence on speculative sentiment.

In a sluggish curb modest gains were registered for American Cyanamid "B", Bath Iron Works, Gulf Oil, Humble Oil and National Steel Car. On the offside were Monarch Machine Tool, Electric Bond & Share, Republic Aviation and Montgomery Ward "A."

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Wheat prices dipped 1 3-8 cents at one time today to within about a cent of the year's lowest level but then rallied.

Hedging sales in connection with the largest receipts of the season at spring wheat terminals, liquidation of September contracts which become deliverable in two weeks, and trade nervousness over the war accounted for the selling. Buying, attributed mostly to mills, helped the rally.

Corn closed unchanged to 3-8 down; oats unchanged to 1-8 off; rye 1-4 to 3-8 down and lard 5 lower to 3 higher.

Traders who considered that Chicago wheat prices were about 12 cents under the government loan rate while Minneapolis prices were 20 cents lower than the value of wheat stored as collateral. They were not inclined to press the market.

Cottonseed Oil Trading Inaugurated in Chicago

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Trading in cottonseed oil was inaugurated on the Board of Trade today with prices quoted on a bid and asked basis in most contracts.

March futures touched a high of $5.62 per hundred pounds, a low of $5.59 and closed at $5.60. Prices of other contracts were quoted near this level and about in line with futures prices in New York.

The first transaction was made between John G. McCarthy, president of the exchange, and John C. Wood, veteran provisions trader.

Increase Is Estimated In Production of Steel

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Steel mills will boost output schedules to 89.7 per cent of capacity this week from 89.5 per cent last week, the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated today.

A month ago production was at 88.9 per cent of capacity and a year ago 62.2 per cent.

The nation's mills have been working around 90 per cent for the past six weeks, which climaxed a pull ahead from about 60 per cent in late April.

George Scalise Called Wizard At Finances

Alleged Associate of Racketeer Accused of Larceny From Union.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(AP)—George Scalise was pictured today at his trial on charges of grand larceny and forgery as a financial wizard who was associated with Racketeer Augie Pisano in an attempt to organize Brooklyn labor.

Louis Marcus, Brooklyn attorney and labor adviser, testified that the former head of the Building Service Employes' International Union (AFL) sought to organize a Jewish butchers' union financed by "Augie and myself" (Scalise).

Marcus identified "Augie" as Augie Pisano when questioned by Assistant District Attorney Murray I. Gurfein.

The defendant is accused of improperly obtaining $60,087 in union monies.

Ann Kimmel, Scalise's former secretary, said he (Scalise) once paid salaries and expenses of the union's New York offices from his own pocket, but later arranged a monthly interchange of $6,000 with the Chicago office that left New York indebted to Chicago for that amount at the end of each month.

She declared her employer's salary was $1,666.66 a month.

A third witness, Alexander Schwartz, a labor counsel, testified he had helped Scalise organize two locals of the Building Service Workers' Union in 1937, and that while Scalise's monthly statements to the Chicago office showed $5,000 as being advanced to them, they never received a cent.

Marcus told of two organizing trips he had made last March to Albany, N. Y., and Wilkes-Barre, Pa., for which he said he received less than Scalise charged the union.

Russell Seeks Legislation To Draft Industry

Will Make Fight in Senate To Have Measure Passed.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Senator Russell, of Georgia, revealed today that he will make a fight on the floor to have the senate restore to the pending second supplemental defense bill a provision of existing law stricken out in the house which gives the War and Navy Departments authority to take over any private manufacturing plant necessary to national defense in time of emergency.

During consideration of the supplemental bill by the Senate Appropriations Committee, of which he is a member, the Georgia senator made an effort to have the provision reinserted in the measure, but was defeated by a narrow margin.

It is Senator Russell's feeling that full authority should be given the government to operate any unit of industry for defense purposes if necessary in time of national emergency. When the pending bill, reported out by committee today, reaches the floor, he will offer an amendment to restore the provision repealed by earlier action of the house.

Amendment by Russell Spurs Air School Plan

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Senator Richard B. Russell today succeeded in having the Senate appropriations committee adopt an amendment to the second development of an army pilot training school at Albany, Ga.

The amendment gives the War Department the same privileges as now enjoyed by the Navy Department in financing the establishment of such pilot training centers.

While preliminary plans have already been approved for the Albany training unit, the Russell amendment of today will make possible enlarged activities.

Flour 'Bombs' Rained in U. S. Mock Warfare

Period Is Milestone on Long Road, General Embick Declares.

CAMP BEAUREGARD, La., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Airplanes rained down sham bombs of flour in paper bags today on the rapidly closing army maneuvers which officers considered a milestone in American history because for the first time in peacetime they had seen a unified National Guard in action.

Officers, pointing out that a third of a million soldiers were in the field in the four maneuver areas of the country, threw all their modern tricks into the closing action.

While differences in the senate and house drafts of legislation authorizing mobolization of the National Guard delayed final congressional action on the measure in Washington today, Lieutenant General Stanley D. Embick, in command of the Third Army maneuvers here, said:

"This particular period is a milestone on the long road which our army has traveled. For the first time in peacetime history, all four armies are in the field, regulars, National Guardsmen and selected reservists."

Speed and pressure were put on the soldiers whose "battle" ends at 9 tomorrow morning. This will be followed by a criticism of the tactics and methods of warfare displayed in the area here.

General Embick, explaining the purpose of the maneuvers, said they "are not a test of units, staffs or commanders, but a means by which all units, their men, staffs, and commanders, would receive training under as realistic conditions as are possible in peacetime."

Howell Advocates More Cancer Aid

Hugh Howell, candidate for Governor, said in a statement yesterday that the plank in his platform advocating that the state give more attention to cancer control clinic work in Georgia had gained wide approval from the medical and nursing profession. In discussing this plank, Howell said:

"The terrible toll taken by cancer in Georgia is shocking. While every effort has been put forth by the medical profession of Georgia and in the nation to aid cancer patients over the state, I believe that the state of Georgia should muster its full resources behind the medical profession of the state so that the people who are afflicted with the dread disease may have more and better treatment. At the same time, the state should set up separate and additional programs for research in order for those who are afflicted to receive treatment. Also, that research and investigation may go forward in order that preventive measures may be worked out."

F. D. R. Picking U. S.-Canadian Defense Group

First Meeting of Board Is Projected for Next Week.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 19.—(AP)—The first meeting of a permanent United States-Canadian Board of Defense was projected for early next week as President Roosevelt began today the selection of its American members.

By telephone from his ancestral home, Mr. Roosevelt asked State, War and Navy Department officials in Washington to recommend four or five persons, drawn chiefly from the armed forces, to serve on the board with an equal number of Canadians.

There was nothing to indicate whether he would call on the army and navy high command for the personnel or rely on subordinate officers. But he hoped to complete his choice by Thursday in preparation for the board's initial meeting at a place not yet designated.

The rapid pace of developments leading to the unprecedented strengthening of United States ties with a nation at war emphasized the gravity with which the chief executive viewed the problems of continental defense.

In the field of politics today, the President gave no indication whether he would answer, much less accept, the challenge of Republican Presidential Candidate Wendell L. Willkie to debate campaign issues.

MORGENTHAU LEAVES ON CANADA TRIP

BEACON, N. Y., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. left his home early today for an undisclosed Canadian destination.

In Washington, there was some speculation that he might have gone to Canada in connection with hemisphere defense, for which plans to set up a joint board of five army and navy men were announced yesterday.

2 Atlanta Boys Added to Star Football Team

Tom Bishop and Broadwell Named Tackles on North Squad.

By JOHN MARTIN.

Now that the Cracker-Vol argument has past its so-called "crooshulness" and the thermometer is dipping below 90, at least after dark, it might be time to remind the game-going populace that football will be here before next week-end.

It's coming in the form of the third annual All-Star prep game at Grant Field, just a week from Friday night.

Two Atlanta boys were added to the Northern All-Star squad yesterday as replacements for tackles that declined invitations to play, Dwight Keith, ramrod of the classic, announced. Tom Bishop, Commercial star, and Gene Broadwell, 200-pound North Fulton ace, are the newcomers.

Bishop took the place of Ray Watson, of Cedartown, and Broadwell succeeded Jack Askew, of Greensboro, who was signalled to the sidelines by the coach at Furman, where he is expected to enroll next month.

Another replacement on the North squad will be Glenn Rayney, of Toccoa, for Frank Fain, of Canton. Rayney is a back.

The All-Stars will report here Friday afternoon for equipment and a short warm-up session. The first formal drills will be held Saturday.

All in The Game

Quo Vadis? The young man whose likeness is carried here may be contemplating jumping in the lake. Things haven't been breaking so well for him.

He is unemployed and not eligible for unemployment compensation.

He is unable to rake up a dime unless he can catch his old man in a cheerful mood.

You can appreciate, then that he is in just the sort of blue funk the picture indicates, when you realize that the other morning while minding his own business the mail man shocked him beyond words.

There was a notice from the city hall for Daniel Troy to come down and pay his taxes or suffer the penalty for failure to comply.

The kid in the three-cornered pants had never been nonplussed before. But that got him.

Fact is when the carpenters left a screen out in the front room and forgot to remove a chair from in front of the window, the young man seized his opportunity.

He was discovered sitting out on the roof watching the cars go by. There was no way of telling what else he had on his mind.

It's really a problem—and yet life is supposed to be so simplified when you're two!

Savannah River Water Tested As Thousands of Fish Die

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 19.—(AP) With thousands of fish mysteriously dying in the Savannah river here, perturbed game officials today collected samples of water to be turned over to chemists for analysis.

Saturday hundreds of baby flounders, salt water fish, were apparently forced up the river where they died by the hundreds in the area of the city's wharves. Dead bodies of many a sturgeon likewise were floating on the stream.

River front men today reported that the waters were full of dying catfish, rockfish, and carp. Silver eels, snakes, and even the hardy crab were said to be floating dead on the surface.

Ivy Kassels, supervisor of the coastal areas, made a survey of wild life, and L. E. Woodward, Chatham county game warden, made a survey of the situation this afternoon.

They reported sighting many dead sturgeon, mullet, catfish, flounders, and some small shad. The sturgeon ranged from very small ones to those weighing about 100 pounds, they said. Dead fish washed onto the river banks attracted many vultures.

The officials said that apparently all fish in the river had been killed.

Experts are at a loss to account for the massacre. Chemists' tests already made indicate that no harmful caustic alkalis or mineral acids are in the water.

Some describe it as a result of last Sunday's hurricane, while others attribute it to the flood waters now moving toward the coast from Augusta.

Atlanta Blows Great Chance To Win in 10th

Nashville Widens Lead to Six Games; Miller, Jeffcoat Hurl Well.

By JACK TROY.

Everything good the Crackers had done in battling the league-leading Vols to a stand-off for nine innings was undone on one sophomoric mistake on the part of Emile Lochbaum last night.

Lachbaum balked in the winning run in the 10th inning as the Vols, winning, 3 to 2, took the series, 2 to 1, and increased their lead to six games.

The Crackers had done everything to win, including sending their old nemesis, George Jeffcoat, to the showers.

A run behind going into the ninth, the Crackers rallied to tie up the game.

There were two out in the 10th, with Dick Culler on third, when Lochbaum balked. Culler walked home and then Moser was an easy third out.

NOW SIX GAMES.

You might say that the Crackers of 1940 were balked out of an opportunity to continue the pennant fight. They still will continue the fight, understand, but there is a large difference between four and six games. And the season is not getting any longer.

It was Culler, who caused all the commotion the night before on Glock's winning drive to center, who called attention to Lochbaum's balk. Red Jones, umpiring bases, called it.

It was a real ball game. Miller and Jeffcoat, each seeking 14 wins, went nine innnigs. Jeffcoat fanned nine, Miller five. They left with the game tied up. Adams was credited with the win, while Lochbaum was charged with the loss.

The Crackers led, 1 to 0, for six innings and the Vols took the lead on a two-run rally in the seventh. The Crackers tied it up in the ninth and then lost in the 10th.

A ladies' night crowd of more than 6,000 witnessed the final game of the series. Chattanooga's Lookouts move in tonight. There will be games tonight and tomorrow night. Either Burgess or Harris will pitch.

Lightning fielding prevented a Cracker run in the third. Anderson drove a hit off Boken's glove. Mailho doubled off the right field signs. Dugas retrived the ball quickly, relayed it to Culler and Culler made a perfect throw to the plate and Anderson was out.

Poor fielding enabled the Crackers to score the first run in the fourth. With two out, Burge tripled to left. Marshall hit a roller to Rocco, who fumbled the ball, and Burge scored.

The Crackers loaded the bases with two out in the sixth. Hill singled and Burge and Marshall walked. Glock struck out.

Miller, who had allowed only five hits up to the seventh, weakened and the Vols scored two runs to take the lead. Dugas started it off with a walk. George grounded out. Rocco singled to center, scoring Dugas. Boken grounded out. Culler then singled to center and Rocco scored the untying run.

NINTH STRIKEOUT.

The Crackers had another good chance in the seventh. Miller singled with one out and Mailho doubled after two were away. Bates struck out. It was Jeffcoat's ninth strikeout.

Came the ninth and a last chance which the Crackers did not waste. They routed Jeffcoat as they tied up the game. Two were out when Hafey, batting for Miller, doubled to center on the first pitch. Anderson walked. Mailho beat out a hit to short, loading the bases. Bates beat out a hit to third, scoring Hafey. Adams replaced Jeffcoat and Hill popped to Boken, retiring the side.

Lochbaum balked home the untying run in the 10th. Boken singled and was forced by Culler. Culler hit a perfect double-play ball to Anderson, who tossed to Glock, forcing Boken. Glock made a wild throw to first and Culler went to second. He advanced on Adams' infield out and scored when Lochbaum balked with Moser up. Moser grounded out.

Burge led off the Crackers' half of the 10th with a single. Marshall lined out to Hockett. Glock walked and Williams singled to right, loading the bases. Richards, batting for Lochbaum, hit to Adams, and Burge was forced at the plate. Anderson flied to center.

STILL UNBEATEN—The Crackers still have not beaten George Jeffcoat. The crack Nashville right-hander has licked Atlanta 10 times in two seasons, including last year's Shaughnessy playoffs. Jeffcoat almost had victory No. 11 last night, but the Crackers tied the score with two out in the ninth and forced him from the mound. Relief Hurler Ace Adams was credited with the victory.

Red Sox Sock Four Homers, Crush Indians

Tabor Hits for Circuit With Bases Full in 16-7 Victory.

BOSTON, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The Boston Red Sox gained their most decisive triumph of the season over the league-leading Cleveland Indians today by hammering three pitchers for 14 hits, including four homers, for a 16-7 decision.

Jim Tabor smashed out a "grand slammer" against Johnny Humphries in the fourth inning after Jimmy Foxx had belted his thirty-third circuit drive of the year. Ted Williams and Bobby Doerr also helped pile up the score by driving balls out of the park.

The Sockers teed off against Starter Joe Dobson in the third inning and then hopped on Humphries to pull into a 12-2 lead at the end of the fourth. That margin was a great help to Joe Heving, for the Indians whaled his slowball pitching for 12 hits, including homers by Hal Trosky, Jeff Heath and Roy Weatherly.

Foxx, Williams and Doerr each scored three times, and Foxx led the Sockers' attack by getting three hits for four, including the game's only two-bagger. The Indians sent 16 players to bat against Heving as he collected his eighth win, but only Weatherly, Trosky and Roy Bell managed to hit safely against him twice.

Dobson gave the Sox six hits and as many runs before he was yanked and Humphries was shelled for seven hits and nine runs.

THE REAL McCOY AT A SURPRISE PARTY.

The City Amateur Golf tournament might have been a surprise party with the real McCoy for a surprise. The victory of Bob McCoy was unexpected as far as most golf followers were concerned, and it seems natural to tag him as the real McCoy after that.

If his victory was a surprise, though, the word amazement would have to be dragged out to describe the reaction of fans and golfers who were seeing for the first time this 24-year-old Corrigan of the fairways.

Those following him in any of the matches at the city tournament were close to dumbfounded at the manner in which he hit the ball. As they walked down the fairways, several fans kept swinging imaginary golf clubs with the right fist above the left.

SHARP.

"How in the world can he hit the ball that way?" more than one asked. Then when Bob switched to the usual grip—left hand on the end of the shaft with the right below it—there was more talk. He changed to the usual grip for short shots and putts, you know.

Then there was his accuracy on short shots. A pitch dead to the pin happens to be a habit with Bob as his opponents may have noticed. It is his best shot. He is used to missing greens and still getting pars. Scrambling, it is called, and McCoy is a past master at it.

Those pitches broke Luke Barnes in the semi-finals for a 2-and-1 victory. Every time Luke looked up a pitch was rolling up so close to the hole that it scared him.

And it probably accounted, in the main, for the other victories it took to put Bob in the finals, for Bob will tell you he relies on that part of the game and not hitting the greens.

McCoy won two extra-hole matches to reach the finals. He halted Carling Dinkler Jr. at the 20th hole and he trimmed Billy Caye in the first round at the 19th. Paul Mullins and Barnes were his other victims.

At the 19th hole of his match with Dinkler, McCoy came close to defeat—closer, I believe, than he did in any other match. His tee shot was topped and he had a full wood to the green. Dinkler was well down the fairway with a reasonable iron to the green.

At that point, McCoy came up with what it took. He belted his second shot with a wood, and the ball made the green. As one spectator said: "Bob hit that ball so hard he sprained it, and then it limped on the green."

It was a pay-off shot, though, and a beauty. Because Dinkler got his 4 and Bob needed his to carry the match to the 20th hole for a victory.

Just one more word about surprises. Fellows who have played against McCoy weren't so surprised to see him win the tournament. They have watched him pitch dead to too many pins.

And if there is one thing in golf which will give opponents the jitters, it's a fellow who misses greens and still gets his pars. Two or three holes of that and you will wonder which end of the club to bite.

It's tough on opponents—a real advantage in match play.

Too, there are two advantages of using a cross-handed grip. It is almost impossible to keep from having the left arm straight at impact and the right elbow cannot get away from the right place.

Add that to a fighting heart and you have the new city golf champion.

Jug McSpaden Bows to Snead On Last Green

Canadian Victory Boosts Slammin' Sam's Winnings to $6,406.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 19.—(UP)—Sam Snead today won his second Canadian Open golf championship when Harold (Jug) McSpaden missed a three-foot putt on the last green of an 18-hole play-off.

This victory gave Bridegroom Snead $1,000 first money and brought his total to $6,406, keeping him in the race for leading money-winners of the year. Ben Hogan and Jimmy Demaret, neither of whom were in the tourney, have won $9,405 and $8,477, respectively. McSpaden received $600 second money.

McSpaden and Snead, who were tied with 281s at the close of the tournament Saturday, were still deadlocked as they stood on the 18th tee. But Snead shot a four for a 71, even par, and McSpaden required a five for a 72.

Doubles Tennis Meet Delayed By Wet Courts

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Slippery courts and overcast skies forced a 24-hour postponement today of the annual national doubles tennis championships at the Longwood Cricket Club.

The postponement was ordered by Referee Irving C. Wright when he found that three hours of sun was needed to correct conditions resulting from a night-long drizzle. Tournament officials said they did not want to take any chances of injuries marring the doubles.

Weather and the courts' conditions permitting, the tennis stars of the nation—men and women—will begin competition tomorrow afternoon at 1 p. m. (E. S. T.).

Zale, Soose Fight Wednesday Night

By EARL HILLIGAN.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Tony Zale and Billy Soose, two star pupils in boxing's 160-pound class, are going to work at Mills stadium Wednesday night—on each other and the muddled middleweight championship picture.

Zale, recognized by the National Boxing Association as the middleweight champion, won't be risking his title in this scheduled 10-round affair, because it's an overweight match. But the ex-steel mill worker from Gary, Ind., will be risking loss of much prestige both to Soose and Ken Overlin, recognized as the 160-pound king by the state of New York.

Postponement Of Nomination Is Also Hinted

Defense Program May Prolong Final Decision by 13 School Heads

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Appointment of a Southeastern conference athletic commissioner, if any, will come today at 12 o'clock noon at a luncheon at Georgia Tech.

After a stormy debate, which started yesterday afternoon and lasted into the night, the heads of the 13 member schools were little nearer a decision on who was to be the new czar of the athletics than they were before they started the meeting.

A renewal of last night's session will start this morning and at noon an announcement of some sort will be forthcoming.

There has been a great deal of doubt expressed by authoritative sources that a commissioner will be announced. It is understood there is much agitation to defer the decision until the regular December meeting of the conference. Some of the members believe it unwise to hire a person to a four-year, $10,000-a-year contract with the national defense program as uncertain as it is.

STILL DIVIDED.

Conference President G. D. Humphries, of Mississippi State, said after last night's session the nominating committee was still divided on its recommendation.

Whether or not the nominating committee is able to reach an agreement by noon today, a decision will be made public at that time.

While the presidents were in session a new name was injected into the speculation of possible appointees. Glenn Shabinger, ex-athletic director of Creighton University, was reported as being under serious consideration. Many league officials in "off the record conversations" were favorable to his appointment.

HUTCHENS LIKED.

Among others mentioned for the position are Art Hutchens, of Lake Wales, Fla., secretary of the Southern Football Officials' Association; Drane Lester, Batesville, Miss., attorney, and ex-agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation; Mike Conner, former Governor of Mississippi, and W. O. (Chink) Lowe, Smoky Mountain Conference commissioner. Lowe was in town last night.

No candidates were interviewed last night, a member of the committee said.

It has also been mentioned that no one previously connected with the conference would be hired. Several of the members hinted that the new commissioner would be a complete surprise to the public and intimated that no one seeking the job would be selected.

Dodger Chances Good, Durocher

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Although his Dodgers are starting a tough western tour four games behind the league-leading Cincinnati Reds, Leo Durocher still figures Brooklyn has a very good chance to win the National League pennant.

"If we come home only three games behind, we'll win the flag," Leo said shortly before taking off. Luke Hamlin's return to pitching form, Whit Wyatt's consistently good mound work, and Joe Medwick's hitting comeback were three reasons he gave for holding this belief. Then he added:

"I think we're a cinch to improve our standing on this trip, so how can we miss? The schedule will be in our favor all through September."

Pat Ankeman Sent Home by Pelicans

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 19.—(AP) Pat Ankeman, New Orleans' peppery second-baseman who became ill Sunday before the double bill with Little Rock, has been sent to his home at Houston, Texas, Charley Hurth, business manager of the Pels, announced today. Ankeman's illness had not been diagnosed.

Dodd on Faculty Of Coaching Clinic

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Aug. 19.—(AP)—With a large number of out-of-state coaches enrolled, directors of Daytona Beach's second annual coaching school expected approximately 100 students here today for the six-day course.

Included on the faculty are Frank Leahy of Boston College, Tom Lieb of the University of Florida, Bobby Dodd of Georgia Tech and Adolph Rupp, coach of Kentucky's potent basketball team.

The school is being directed by George Trogden, of Jacksonville, and Leonard (Whitey) McLucas, of Sanford, under the auspices of the Florida State Coaches Association. Sessions will be held twice daily through Saturday.

Bosox Get Gelbert From Washington

BOSTON, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Charles Gelbert, utility infielder of the Washington Senators, was obtained today by the Boston Red Sox by the waiver route.

Red Sox officials said Gelbert was to report immediately to Manager Joe Cronin. Gelbert, who is 34, has played in 27 games this year, and bats for .370.

Redlegs Option Mike Dejan To Barons for Rest of Year

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 19.—(AP)—Mike Dejan, slugging outfielder sold to the Cincinnati Reds by Chattanooga for $30,000 and Outfielder Art Luce earlier in the season, has been optioned to Birmingham by the Reds.

When sold by Chattanooga Dejan was batting .404 in 79 games for the Lookouts to lead the Southern League. He is scheduled to report immediately.

He was up only 16 times, chiefly as a pinch-hitter, for an average of .188 with Cincinnati.

Big Bim Never To Race Again, Says Bradley

Injury Ends Colt's Racing Days; To Be Retired To Stud.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 19.—(UP)—Bimelech struck his silks forever today.

Colonel Edward Riley Bradley announced that X-ray photographs disclosed a broken bone in the colt's foot and that he would be retired to stud in Kentucky at once.

The aged owner said the veterinarian who inspected the horse and the picture said the "bar which connects the frog to the side wall" had been snapped. He explained that it would take at least six months for the bar to grow back and at least another four months for it to "muscle" to a degree where Bimelech could stand hard training.

The long period of convalescence meant that the son of Black Toney could not return to the tracks before 1942, if at all, so Bradley said he would be retired to the stud block at Idle Hour Farm.

KENTUCKY BOUND.

"Bimelech will be shipped to Kentucky immediately," Bradley said. "He will go to stud next spring and will cover a book of 15 mares. In all respects except the bar he is sound as a proverbial bell and should prove a great sire just as he was a great race horse."

The colt, bred by the Colonel and hailed as the greatest horse he ever had owned, injured himself during a workout Saturday. At first the hurt was diagnosed as a bruised heel. The Idle Hour entourage said the colt's poor showing in his last race, the Arlington classic, in which he ran third, might be attributed to the injury.

Bimelech retires as the sixteenth richest money-winning horse produced in America. One of the great two-year-olds in history, he won six races without defeat last season and earned $135,090.

SHORT-PRICED.

Shortest winter-book favorite in Kentucky Derby records, he won his first two starts of 1940—the Blue Grass Stakes and the Derby trial—with ease. In the Derby, however, he ran second to Gallahadion. He won the Preakness but was beaten in his next start, the Withers Mile, by Corydon.

He came back again to win the Belmont stake but ran the worst race of his career at Arlington Park in the classic when he finished third behind Tirocco. In 13 starts he won 10 races, was second twice, third once, and never out of the money. His earnings for the two years total $235,095.

Challedon Gets Favorite Role In $25,000 Race

Brann Horse To Carry 133 Pounds; Kayak II Assigned 130.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—(AP)—William L. Brann's Challedon, the 1939 horse-of-the-year, was assigned top weight of 133 pounds in the $25,000-added Washington Park handicap to be run September 2 over the mile-and-one-quarter route.

Challedon will be asked to carry three pounds more than Charles S. Howard's Kayak II, according to the weight list announced by the Washington Park handicapper, Charles J. McLennan. William Woodward's Hypnotist II, a European bred star, was assigned 123 pounds, with the Greentree Stable's Third Degree getting in at 119 and the Kentucky Derby winner, Gallahadion, being assigned 116, the same figure given A. CHICKS 4-0; BARONS 1-3.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 19.—Memphis walloped Birmingham, 4 to 1, in the first game today, but the double-header jinx caught up with the Chicks in the nightcap as Paul Gehrman shut them out, 3 to 0, on a three-hit performance. It was the third straight double-header the Chicks have split.

The Chicks worked their way around the bases on singles, sacrifices, an error, a double and a triple to score one run in each of the final four innings of the first game.

The Barons took the upper hand in the second game from the start, Russ Bevel singling on Bob Joyce's first pitch and coming home on the second toss as Fred Tauby doubled. The center fielder scored on Grant Scott's single.

Memphis moves to Little Rock tomorrow and Birmingham goes home to entertain New Orleans in a double-header.

U. S. May Drop Air Expansion At Ft. Benning

Lawson Field Too Small for Squadron, Officer Hints.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(AP) The Quartermaster Corps reported tonight a construction program planned for Lawson Field, Fort Benning, Ga., probably would be modified or abandoned.

Bids were opened last week on a mess hall, barracks, and other facilities for the twenty-seventh bombardment squadron at the Georgia post. The contract awards, however, were withheld at the request of the air corps, a construction officer said.

Declining to be quoted by name, the officer said the project probably would be changed because the Air Corps believed Lawson Field too small for the entire squadron. He said at least part of it probably would be transferred elsewhere.

There was no confirmation from the Air Corps, which said the Lawson Field situation had not yet been settled. An officer pointed out, however, it was not customary to divide a squadron. He said there would be no statement from the Air Corps until the War Department made a final decision.

Mexico, Afraid Of Revolution, Halts U. S. Ship

American Freighter Is Quickly Released After Being Stopped.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Mexico, on watch against any attempts to land arms for a revolution, stopped the American freighter Herman Frasch off Acapulco, on the Pacific coast, today, but quickly permitted the ship to go on its way.

Acapulco is in the state of Guerrero, a stronghold of General Juan Almazan, independent, who claims election to the presidency over the administration favorite, General Manuel Avila Camacho, in the July 7 elections.

Officially the government was silent, but it was learned authoritatively that "Mexico is watching the coast, particularly Guerrero, to prevent any trouble."

It also was explained that Mexico is co-operating with the United States in watching the coasts because of "the present disturbed state of affairs in the world."

Whether the freighter was within the three-mile international limit or the nine-mile limit claimed by Mexico when stopped was not clear.

The government press bureau was silent on the incident and also on reports that four army generals regarded as Almazan followers have been arrested in Acapulco.

DESTROYER REPORTED SPEEDING TO SCENE

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—(AP)—A United States destroyer was reported steaming into Mexican waters tonight to investigate the boarding of an American freighter, the Herman Frasch, by an armed party from a Mexican gunboat.

Knox's Paper Backs Willkie For President

Navy Secretary, However, Denies Part in Election Stand.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(AP)—The Chicago Daily News editorially indorsed Wendell L. Willkie for President today, and Secretary of the Navy Knox, its publisher, issued a statement here saying that he was no longer directing its policy and would not participate in the campaign.

Knox's statement said:

"I have taken a leave of absence from the Chicago Daily News and since then I have taken no part in directing the policy of the paper. I am devoting myself exclusively to the duties of the secretary of the navy which is a non-political office. I have completely divorced myself from partisan politics and shall take no part in the current political campaign."

The News is an independent newspaper and supported the Republican ticket in 1936, when Knox was vice presidential nominee. It announced last week that it would be operated by a three-man board while Knox was in the cabinet.

Tobacco Sales Past Halfway Auction Mark

Second Week Price Average Is Lowered to 17-72 Cents.

Georgia bright leaf tobacco growers received $5,722,700.09 last week for 32,297,638 pounds of their new crop.

The Georgia Department of Agriculture said the average price in the 15 auction centers was 17.72, compared with an opening week average of 18.78.

(The Agricultural Market Service at Adel reported Saturday that prices actually were higher by grades in both in the Georgia and Florida belts, but that larger quantities of low-grade leaf pulled the general average down.)

Market observers estimated that more than half of the Georgia crop had been sold, despite the more leisurely pace of the auctions this season. Growers had been urged repeatedly not to jam markets in an effort to sell their crop in the first few days of the sales.

FSA Officials Of Four States Gather Today

Conference Here Will Be Devoted to South's Rural Problems.

Nearly 200 Farm Security Administration officials from Georgia, Florida, Alabama and South Carolina will meet in the Biltmore hotel today for the first in a four-day "working conference" directed toward the solution of economic ills facing rural families in this section.

C. B. Baldwin, newly appointed FSA national director, arrived here last night in time for the organization of a series of round-table discussions on the technical phases of lending rehabilitation money to 80,882 families in the Fifth Region, of which 25,456 are located in Georgia.

According to E. S. Morgan, regional director from Montgomery, Ala., the actual work of the meeting will be handled by committees composed of well over 100 district supervisors and led in their discussions by national officials and four state directors.

After the meeting, it was pointed out, these district men will return home to lead similar meetings with their county administrators and home economists who head the lending program and rehabilitation plans in their communities.

Assisting in the committee direction will be Julian Brown, assistant regional director; and State Supervisors R. L. Vansant, of Georgia; M. H. Pearson, of Alabama; J. A. Texada Jr., of Florida, and R. F. Kolb, of South Carolina.

The FSA lends money to distressed farm families in an effort to lift them from relief status to self-sustaining basis. Supplementing loans with farm management advice and a broad health program, the FSA further aids the rehabilitated farmer through the Farm Debt Adjustment council which prorates past obligations with present earning capacities.

Probe Planned For Today in DeKalb Crash

Actions of County Police Are To Be Investigated.

A full investigation into statements that DeKalb county police prevented immediate treatment of a score of persons injured in a truck crash near Stone Mountain Saturday will be conducted at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the court house at Decatur.

Announcement of the hearing was made jointly by Commissioner Scott Candler and Police Chief J. T. Dailey and followed the death of Alton G. Barrett, 16, of 558 Spring street—the sixth fatality in the collision which also sent 10 others to the hospital.

The controversy arose when three witnesses complained that officers refused to move some of the injured for more than an hour while waiting for ambulance service. Other witnesses, however, told officials that county police did all in their power to ease pain without endangering life.

To Hear Statements.

Commissioner Candler and Chief Dailey will hear the statements today of all witnesses to the accident and the police activity, as well as medical men, who, according to Dailey, have repeatedly advised him against moving injured persons pending the arrival of trained ambulance or hospital attaches.

Alton G. Barrett died yesterday morning. His brother, 17-year-old Donald E. Barrett, driver of the automobile, was killed almost instantly when his machine collided with a truckload of Atlanta Negroes returning from a picnic at Stone Mountain.

A third white youth, J. P. Grubbs, 19, remained in "good" condition at Emory hospital. Four Negroes were killed in the crash and nine are confined to Grady hospital, where their injuries range from "serious" to "fair".

Parents Survive.

The Barrett brothers are survived by parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Barrett, of 558 Spring street, N. W.; a sister, Miss Janette Barrett, and grandparents, Mrs. N. Barrett, of East Point, and Mr. and Mrs. Will Powell.

Double funeral services for the brothers will be held at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Fox Street Methodist church. The Rev. A. M. Wade and the Rev. Tom Smith will officiate and burial will be in Marietta City cemetery.

The bodies will lie in state at the church from 2:30 until the hour of the funeral. Henry M. Blanchard is in charge of arrangements.

Cheap Bravado Laid to Willkie In Ickes Talk

tive assault on the New Deal when he accepts the New Deal in principle," he said.

He expressed thanks to Willkie for agreeing with Mr. Roosevelt on such topics as selective service and material aid to Britain, but "deplored" the nominee's action in tossing "a sop to the bitter anti-Roosevelt isolationists" by accusing the President of inciting the country to war and misleading other nations. Ickes continued:

"By what grasshopper leap of the imagination does this candidate conclude that this President has not taken the country into his confidence on foreign policy?" Ickes demanded.

"Have the dangers against which President Roosevelt repeatedly warned failed to materialize? Is the Hitler attack on England a manufactured panic?

"The Republican party in 1940 contains the equivalent of England's and France's pro-Nazi Munich appeasers of 1938—the men with the black umbrellas."

"What has Mr. Willkie's current party to offer America but more Munichs, more appeasement abroad, and more defeatism and more reaction at home?"

Replying to Willkie's arraignment of "political machines," Ickes said that Willkie had "always enjoyed association with political machines" while New Dealers "sent Boss Pendergast of Kansas City" and others to the penitentiary.

Willkie, he said, joined Tammany Hall in 1929 and later "fought in the ranks of Tammany Hall, which sought the defeat of Fiorello La Guardia, the courageous and incorruptible administrator of a great city."

Willkie, he continued, had once praised the late Samuel Insull as a "forceful, dynamic and attractive figure" while thousands of others "execrate Insull as the man who ruined them."

"PLAIN FALSEHOODS," WILLKIE REPLIES

RUSHVILLE, Ind., Aug. 19.—Wendell L. Willkie said tonight that Secretary Ickles had stated "plain and simple falsehoods," in a radio address tonight and that he was "astonished that the President of the United States would authorize such a speech."

The Republican presidential nominee sent the following telegram to Chairman Joseph Martin of the Republican national committee:

"Please waste no money in buying radio time to answer Ickes. It is unworthy of answer. Unable to make any reply to the acceptance speech, the New Dealers are evading issue by resort to false personal innuendoes.

"I am not surprised that Ickes would stoop to such levels, but I am astonished that the President of the United States would authorize such a speech.

"The statement of Mr. Ickes that I am or ever was a member of Tammany Hall and his implication that I ever approved of the activities of Samuel Insull, or that I have any business connections of any kind today are plain and simple falsehoods."

Willkie Pledges To Keep Nation Free of War

Republican Candidate Visits Farms, Speaks in Rushville.

RUSHVILLE, Ind., Aug 19.—(AP) Welcomed home as "a Rush county farmer," Wendell L. Willkie told a crowd in City Memorial park here this afternoon that he was ready to make any "personal sacrifice" to keep the United States out of war and "to preserve at all hazards the kind of life we have here in Rush county."

"While bombs are raining down on England today," he said, "I feel an overwhelming sense of humility that I have been called to a position of leadership in one of the most critical periods of world history."

The Republican presidential nominee was introduced as "a Rush county farmer" by Ernest B. Thomas, who was president of the school board when Mrs. Willkie was graduated from the local high school in 1908. Twelve members of Mrs. Willkie's class were in the audience.

Willkie, who earlier in the day had taken newspapermen on a tour of his five near-by farms, replied to the introduction:

"I want to correct one error at once. I am a purely conversational farmer. I have never done a stroke of work on a Rush county farm, and I hope I never have to. I merely do the talking."

Robert Russell Takes Oath as District Judge

Life-Long Family Friend Swears in Brother of U. S. Senator.

By JACK SPALDING.

Robert L. Russell, of Winder, was sworn in yesterday afternoon as United States district judge for the northern district of Georgia.

The ceremony took place in the courtroom of the federal building in Gainesville. The oath was administered by Judge Clifford Pratt, of Winder, presiding judge of the Piedmonth circuit of superior court and life-long friend of the Russell family.

Judge Russell took the oath with his hand on a Bible that has been in his family for more than half a century. The same Bible was used when his father, Richard B. Russell Sr., then chief justice of the Georgia supreme court swore in his brother, Richard B. Russell Jr., as United States senator.

He signed the necessary papers with a pen that was part of a desk set presented him by his former associates of the Winder bar.

Mother at Ceremony.

Attendnig the ceremony were Russell's mother, several of his brothers and sisters, his wife, and four children, Robert L. Jr., 16; Betty, 13; Richard B. III, 10; and Mary Ina, two.

Yesterday also was the new judge's 40th birthday.

Born in Winder, Judge Russell is the second and sixth child of a family of 13. His brothers and sisters include Senator Richard B. Russell Jr., the Rev. Edward Russell, pastor of Rock Springs Presbyterian church, Atlanta, and Mrs. Hugh Peterson, wife of the Georgia congressman.

Graduating from Gordon Institute at Barnesville he attended the University of Georgia and read law in his father's Winder office.

Admitted to the bar in 1920, he practiced in Atlanta for several years and then served for six years as his father's secretary. He returned to Winder in 1930.

Appointment of an additional judge for the district was necessitated by increasingly heavy court calendars, and the unusually heavy load of work placed on the shoulders of Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood. His name was sent to the senate by President Roosevelt and confirmed two weeks ago.

Directed Brother's Campaigns.

Never seeking high political office himself, he successfully directed his brother Richard's one gubernatorial and two senatorial campaigns.

Representing the district attorney's office at the ecremony were First Assistant United States Attorney J. Ellis Mundy and Assistant Attorney Chatty Martin.

Jon Dean Steward, clerk of United States District court, was seated at the clerk's desk directly before Russell at the swearing-in and was the first man to congratulate him.

United States district court for the northern part of the state sits in Atlanta, Rome, Newnan and Gainesville. Russell, however, intends to maintain his home in Winder.

Cool rooms and apartments wanted. Those "seeking" are "peeking" into the rent ads of The Constitution.

Another Man Is the Only Hope To Save a Girl in a Triangle

By Caroline Chatfield.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:
I have fallen in love with a married man old enough to be my father. We love each other very much, but I don't want to separate him from his wife. We have dreamed of a day when we could be together, have a home and all the things that make life worth living. He has taken me out a few times, but it is not very satisfactory, as we are always afraid we will be seen and talked about. Tell me anything but to forget him. It happens that I am too much in love for that. C. D.

ANSWER:

Tell you anything but to forget him? All right. Love doesn't come all of a sudden to a girl and a married man twice her age. If it can be called love with any truth it comes at the end of a long series of episodes beginning with the rascally married man's decision to find a little fun and excitement. Being legally and morally bound to his wife there's scant danger of his getting in so deep he can't swim to safety. Mama is his life preserver.

He happens upon a young, impressionable girl who is rarin' for a romance. Experienced, he knows exactly how to begin, what to do and say to start the ball rolling. They're off. She's trusting. He's tricky. He's having a swell time. She's having a scarey time. He moves in the light. She's shunted into the shadow. He keeps his established place in whatever circle he moves. She sacrifices her's. She dreams of marriage to him. He plans to stay married to his wife. She looks forward to the day when he will make everything right for her. He looks around anxiously for the way out of an embarrassing mess.

There are only a few points at which their experiences are the same or similar. She doesn't want to separate him from his wife and he doesn't want to be separated from his wife. They are agreed that going out together isn't very satisfactory and they are agreed that something must be done, the quicker the better. Sleep is no longer sweet. Dreams are disturbing. Waking is little better and what with slipping and sliding, lying and deceiving, constant effort to quiet the little policeman inside the breast there's not much joy in life.

Tell you anything but to forget him? Only an honest, eligible boy friend can tell you that. Where is he and how can you find him while you are taken up with separating a married man from his wife?
CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Today's Charm Tip

The poker-faced individual plays a lone game in the social sphere. The woman whose facial expression is interesting and alive wins friends and admirers.

Ready for playtime is RKO Radio's young star, Gale Storm, in her very trim white frock of novelty cotton. A silk scarf, the same shade as her very bright red belt, runs up from high side pockets to wrap around the neck and tie in front. The leather sports sandals are also red.

How an Office Worker Can Control Her Hips

By Ida Jean Kain.

Sitting at a desk for eight hours a day certainly doesn't do a thing to improve a girl's figure! But unless you have been sitting in an air-conditioned office, you don't feel like coming home and exercising! If you are to exercise at all, it has to be made easy for you—and rolling is!

You can roll your figure smooth no matter what your hip problem—and it varies: Some hips jut out bustle style, some bow out at the sides, others just spread out. The technique is to bring pressure to bear on the portion that needs trimming.

For the bustle effect, try this:

Position: Sit on the floor with the legs straight out in front and lean slightly backward with the hands on the floor at the sides. Be sure that your weight is on the exact spot that juts out.

Movement: From this semi-sitting position, roll across the buttocks, using the hands as a brake and a propeller. Push with one hand, roll across the buttocks, and catch the weight on the other hand. After you have mastered a smooth roll, hold the feet slightly off the floor as you roll to strengthen the tummy muscles. Roll from 100 to 150 times.

To tone down those pincushions of fat that make your hips bow out at the sides, use this straight roll:

Position: Lie on the floor on the left side, legs straight down, right hand braced on floor about chest level.

Movement: Give a vigorous push with the right hand and roll across the hips until you are in the same position on the other side. Continue for 100 counts—that's not too many. The exercise is very easy.

Position: On the floor on the left side, weight supported on left elbow and forearm, the right hand out on the floor about chest-level for leverage. Have the left leg straight down on the floor, the right knee flexed and the foot on the floor just back of the left leg, also for leverage.

Movement: Hoist your hips off the floor and come down with a bump on the fat pad. Bounce away for 50 counts, then rest and devote your energies to the other side.

Now for a general hip roll.

Position: Lie on the back on the floor, hands clasped back of the head, knees flexed and feet held off the floor.

Movement: Using your upper arms to give yourself a shove, roll from one side to the other, going away over on the hip and thigh-line. Repeat for 15 counts.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

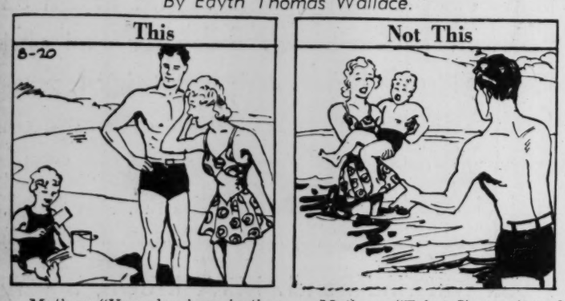
By Edyth Thomas Wallace.



Mother: "You play here in the sand with your bucket and shovel. You don't have to go into the water if you don't want to."

Mother: "Take Jim out and get him good and wet even if he does yell. That's the only way to get him over his fear of the water."

Swain Gives A New View Of Deanna

By Sheilah Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 19.—Deanna Durbin—as seen by the man who loves her—Robert Cummings—in "Spring Parade."

"Everyone is afraid of Deanna—except me," says Bob.

"What do you mean 'afraid'?" I ask.

"Well, she's so important to the studio that everyone's afraid of upsetting her. They treat her like fragile china, like a goddess. Now, if I did that, I couldn't work with her. You see, in the picture I'm Harry Marten. She's 'Ilonka.' I love her. She loves me. If I were afraid of her, I couldn't play my role. I have to feel natural with her.

"So," continues Bob, "I decided at the beginning of this picture to bring our relations down to earth. On the first morning I greeted her with, 'Hi-ya, Stinky!' Deanna was so startled she didn't know what to do. She went to her sweetheart, Vaughn Paul, and said, 'He called me Stinky—me! What shall I do about it?' The next day she shouted to me, 'Hi-ya, Slug!' So now it's 'Stinky' and 'Slug' between us. She made up a poem about it—

" 'Hi-ya Stinky, hi-ya Slug,
How about doing a jitterbug?'

"It's not very good, but just shows how you can break Deanna down by being natural with her instead of afraid. She's a reserved girl. It's all a question of breaking her down."

I'd say that Cummings was doing almost too good a job.

Here's another sidelight on the popular singing star, as told me by Mr. Cummings. "A few days ago," says Bob, "Deanna asked me, 'How do other leading ladies behave? What do they say, what do they do?'" Bob told her about Laraine Day, with whom he made "And One Was Beautiful." "Every morning," Bob told Deanna, "Laraine used to whistle, 'Wheew,' wink at me, and say, 'Hello, kid.' So Deanna whistled, winked, and said, 'Hello Kid.' Then she wanted to know how stage actresses behaved. I told her about Lynn Fontanne's laugh. 'Ha, ha, ha,' mimicked Deanna. 'No, not like that,' I told her. 'Do it from way inside you.'"

Now you hear Deanna "ha-ha-ing"—from 'way inside her—before every "take" with Bob.

I ask Deanna if there is any change in the Deanna of "Spring Parade" and Deanna of his first picture with her, "Three Smart Girls Grow Up."

"No," he replies emphatically.

"But she's a year and a half older now," I remind him.

"Still no," says Bob. "Deanna has always been grown up—she's always been 'old.'" Well, now you know how Miss Durbin looks through the spectacles of the man who loves her—in "Spring Parade." Be interesting to compare notes with the man who loves her—Vaughn Paul—in private life.

Richard Greene swears that his recent trip to Canada with the avowed intention of enlisting in the army, "was not a publicity stunt." And wants me to tell you that he is on a 24-hour call to return to Canada. "I've signed all the enlistment papers," says Dick. "And any day I may receive the telegram of recall." I have a hunch that Richard is being made a scapegoat for someone or other.

Famed British Actress Gladys Cooper tells me, "When I produced and starred in 'The Letter' (1927 in London), I made $200,000 profit." She tried to get a small part in the Better Davis starrer—"but they didn't want me."

Summer offers rich variety of foods for your table.

Try To Vary Summer Dishes

By Sally Saver.

Mother Nature cuts a lavish figure with her fruits, vegetables and melons about this time of the year, challenging you to use your ingenuity in serving them in many varying ways. Nothing is beter than lima beans, simply buttered, but they're good creole style and they're fine with bacon, as in the picture. Here's how to make the dish as shown.

Scotch Limas.

2 cups lima beans.
1 onion, chopped
1-3 cup brown sugar
2 teaspoons salt
1-2 clove garlic
1-4 cup celery, diced
3 strips bacon.

Simmer vegetables and seasonings until tender. Place in a well-greased casserole, cover with bacon strips and bake 20 minutes in moderate, 350-degree, oven, or until bacon is cooked. Serves six.

Try these ways with summer fruits and melons.

Arrange halves of fresh peaches on fresh grape leaves. Stuff the peaches with fresh berries, surround them with balls of honeydew melon and set the whole business off with a scoop of lime sherbet. Tuck a few mint leaves here and there and your guests will have a picture to admire and long remember. Don't forget that all fruits and melons should be served well chilled.

Cut chilled watermelon in one-inch slices. Remove a section of the center pink meat in circle or wedge shape, and cut this center meat into small balls or cubes. Combine these with cantaloupe, honeydew, grapes, or other fruits and berries and fill watermelon center with this medley. Pass powdered sugar, or slightly sweetened fruits just before serving.

Another pretty summer dessert trick is to cut think slices of sponge or angel cake and scoop out a little cavity on one side. Fill this cavity with a scoop of pineapple or apricot sherbet, and decorate plate with small bunches of seedless green grapes.

Questions about foods, recipes, cooking and service will be answered by Sally Saver. Write or phone The Constitution or WA. 6565.

Learn the Cowboy Songs

Lazy days, long summer evenings—the perfect time for western songs, the kind the real cowboys used to sing out on the Texas plains.

So open your songbook to a favorite like "Great Grand Dad" and whoop it up.

Barred his door with a wagon-tongue.
For the times was rough and the redskins mocked,
And he said his prayers with his shotgun cocked."

On dates and parties, when the fun starts running down, strike up a rollicking ditty like "Git Along Little Dogies,"

These and many other favorite cowboy melodies are given in our 50-page songbook, "Western Heart Throbs." Has 27 crackerjack numbers—cowboy ditties, tender western ballads—complete with words, music, piano accompaniments, guitar diagrams. A year-round treasury of fun.

MY DAY: Students Planning A City in Finland

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

HYDE PARK, Sunday.—I picked up a friend who was spending the day with me in New York City yesterday morning and returned to the country in the afternoon. Then I went to keep two appointments.

The first was to talk about a meeting of the United Parents' Association in the autumn, and the second was with a committee from the Society of Podiatricians.

They have a bill in congress which will give them recognition in the army and navy on the same basis as dentists and other specialized groups who do not have M. D. degrees. It seems to me they will certainly be useful in the services. Soldiers on the march and sailors standing watch on board ship, both need this care for their general health and happiness.

In the afternoon I went out to the World's Fair, feeling very sorry that the weather had been so bad all morning. For I knew it would spoil the day for the rural young people who had planned a big meeting in the Court of Peace.

First, I visited the Brazilian pavilion and drank some delicious coffee with the commissioner and his wife. We looked at the murals, which are extremely interesting and depict different phases of life in various parts of Brazil. These murals should, of course, be viewed from a greater distance than their present locations permit, but they are colorful and bold in execution.

From there I went to the Finnish pavilion to unveil the poster which the American Committee for Aid to Finland is putting out in a campaign to gain members to help in their work.

Under the direction of a well-known Finnish architect, a group of students at M. I. T. are planning reconstruction work and the buildings, from the ground up, of a city in Finland. It is an interesting undertaking and the models which they show of the new villages they are planning are certainly an improvement over what was destroyed. It must, however, be hard to rehouse so many people who have lost their homes.

My last visit at the fair was to the model of Quoddy dam built by the NYA. Then we drove home, arriving after 7 o'clock.

Woman's Quiz

Q. Please give directions for laundering colored silks.

A. The suds should be very heavy and not warmer than lukewarm. Do not rub hard, as the fibers may be broken or the gloss dulled. Careful squeezing, or dousing in the suds, is better than rubbing. Avoid strong soap and washing powders and do not twist the fabric to wring out the suds. Rinse thoroughly in water of the same temperature, and dry by squeezing and patting between dry towels or heavy cloths. A final rinse in a bath containing one-half ounce of 36 per cent acetic acid to a gallon of water tends to increase the luster. Dry as quickly as possible, but never in the sun.

Q. Is ice cream made of skimmed milk and eggs, a good food?

A. It is called frozen custard and is an excellent summer dish.

Bothersome Varicose Veins

By Dr. William Brady.

Hemorrhoids (piles) being in fact dilated, enlarged or varicose veins, may be present for years or indeed for a lifetime and never cause more than vague discomfort. More often the subject becomes aware of the trouble when an "attack" occurs—when the pile or piles become inflamed.

In most cases piles are "internal" normally, though an "internal pile, when inflamed, may prolapse or protrude externally after straining, and require replacement following prolapse. In some cases piles are "external," that is, in the mucous-membrane-skin are surrounding the external orifice, and when external piles become inflamed they are much more painful than internal piles.

Internal piles are readily obliterated by injection treatment and the skilled physician can treat most patients successfully in this way without even local anesthesia and without giving the patient enough discomfort to complain about. External piles cannot be so treated. Local anesthesia is necessary as a preliminary step, and instead of injection the hemorrhoidal lesion is then either ligated or if thrombosed (clotted) the clot must be turned out and the incision carefully closed by suture.

Short of medical treatment one suffering from an attack of piles should (1) keep off the feet, preferably lie with hips or legs higher than shoulders; (2) avoid physic except a brisk saline laxative; (3) apply externally 5 per cent belladonna ointment and cover this with large soft compress or pad wrung out of glycerine and hot water, equal parts, changing the pad often enough to keep it hot for an hour or until the pain is alleviated. Smearing the protruding or prolapsed internal pile mass with this 5 per cent belladonna ointment facilitates replacing the piles after defecation.

Reflex irritation or pain is a misleading symptom of piles in many instances—especially when the patient is not aware of the presence of piles or has forgotten the last "attack." "Lumbago," "sciatica" and "bladder trouble" may be of this nature.

Radiance Garden Club Group To Honor Their Husbands

• • • A MOST ENJOYABLE evening awaits the husbands of Radiance Garden Club members, who will be guests of their wives this evening at the garden party and picnic scheduled for 6:30 o'clock. The affair takes the form of an annual get-together, and will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Suttenfield on Harold avenue.

Assisting Mrs. Suttenfield as hostesses will be Mrs. A. J. Long and Mrs. D. S. Smith, and it is predicted that, inspired by the expert planning of this talented trio, the party will be a great success.

The club, you know, was organized in March, 1939, and boasts 25 members. Atlantans have often admired flower arrangements designed by the group, these having adorned department store windows on several occasions of special significance.

Mrs. T. J. Hemminger is the capable president of Radiance Garden Club, and her corps of officers includes Mrs. C. T. Greer, vice president; Mrs. R. B. Sorrells Jr., recording secretary; Mrs. T. Burns Womac, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Herman C. Thie, treasurer.

The picnic menu will feature such delicacies as golden brown fried chicken, cold baked ham, tasty sandwiches, deviled eggs, assorted cheeses and mellow fruits.

• • • AFTER GRADUATING from Yale in 1939, Richard H. Wilmer Jr. entered General Theological Seminary in New York City to study for the ministry. He is the 22-year-old grandson of Mrs. John W. Grant, and his mother is the former Margaret Grant, who married Richard H. Wilmer, and has resided ever since in Washington, D. C. Richard has several years ahead before he finishes his religious studies, and, as yet, he is only a candidate for the ministry. He belongs to the Episcopal faith and has studied only one year at the seminary.

Mrs. Grant leaves today for the national capital to visit Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer and her grandsons, Richard Jr. and Grant Wilmer. One of the highly anticipated events marking her visit in the District of Columbia will culminate next Sunday when Richard delivers a sermon in the Episcopal church at Boyce, Va. His grandmother, his parents and brother will be among his most interested and prideful listeners to his sermon.

He occupied pulpits elsewhere during the summer, but this will be Richard's first sermon delivered in the section close to Washington, D. C. Although still very young, he has given much serious thought toward the ministry and human service. Richard has friends and relatives in Atlanta, the city in which he has made frequent visits to Mrs. Grant and to his grandfather, the late John W. Grant, one of Atlanta's first citizens.

• • • SALLY FORTH was distressed to learn via the mailman that the beautiful home recently constructed for Madame Lotte Lehmann, the well-known Metropolitan opera star, near Santa Barbara, Cal., was completely destroyed by fire on Monday.

Mrs. Robert Hecht, you know, is the guest of Madame Lehmann, having first enjoyed an extensive tour of the golden west. Mr. Hecht and his daughter, Lotte Mia, returned recently from Santa Barbara, where they also visited Madame Lehmann.

The home, titled San Marcos Lodge, was located atop a mountain 5,000 feet high, and afforded a glorious view of both the sea and the mountains. Costing approximately $60,000, the lodge was to Madame Lehmann a dream realized, and it was here that she planned to open an operatic school, as well as give concerts for the pleasure of her intimate friends.

The fire started in the San Marcos pass, but Madame Lehmann's home was evacuated before the flames reached it.

Miss Rose Cohn And Mr. Lichtman Marry at Home

The marriage of Miss Rose Cohn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Cohn, and Charles Karl Lichtman, of New York city, was solemnized Sunday at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Cohn, on Lanier boulevard.

Rabbi George Solomon, of Savannah, officiated before an assemblage of relatives and intimate friends of the couple. Ushers were Cecil Cohn, brother of the bride, and Jack Verner.

Prior to and during the ceremony a program of nuptial music was presented by Miss Leila Hardiman.

The reception rooms of the lovely home were decorated with a profusion of flowers. The altar before which the ceremony was performed was beautifully decorated with an arrangement of palms and ferns, interspersed with a hydrangea motif and lighted tapers held in candelabra.

Miss Anne Cohn, maid of honor, wore peach taffeta, featured by a square neckline with full skirt. She carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses and blue delphinium tied with ribbon.

Miss Flora Cohn, bridesmaid, was gowned in yellow taffeta, trimmed in yellow ruching and featuring off-the-shoulder effect neckline. Her flowers were a shoulder spray of sweetheart roses.

The bride's mother, who acted as her matron of honor, was gowned in blue chiffon. She carried a bouquet of gladiolus, roses and delphinium tied with matching ribbon.

Entering with her brother, Ben Cohn, by whom she was given in marriage, the bride was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, E. B. Cohn, the bride's brother. The lovely brunette bride chose for her wedding a becoming costume of rose pink taffeta designed with a sweetheart neckline, puffed sleeves and full skirt. A small close-fitting turban of matching color with short face veil completed the ensemble. She carried a bridal bouquet of white purple throated orchids and lilies of the valley tied with matching satin ribbon.

After the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception honoring the wedding guests, members of the immediate family and out-of-town guests.

The bride's table was overlaid with an imported lace cloth, centering a silver bowl, containing pastel shades of delphinium, sweetheart roses and valley lilies, flanked by silver candelabra, holding white tapers. Mrs. Lichtman chose for traveling a blue chiffon ensemble with matching accessories. A shoulder spray of sweetheart roses and valley lilies completed her costume. During the evening the bridal couple left for an automobile trip through the Carolinas and Virginias. They will reside in New York city.

Out-of-town guests for the ceremony included: Mrs. Sarah Pearlman, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Mrs. Jeanette Lyons, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; Mrs. J. Weinstock, of New York, sister of the groom, and Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Lodenbaum, of Dalton, Ga.

Miniature Exhibit Is at Center.

The exhibit of miniature flower arrangements will be continued throughout the month at the Garden Center—many attractive ones having recently been displayed by garden clubs. A white china ash tray with turquoise lining was the arrangement of Mrs. E. B. Worsham, president of the Avondale Garden Club. The accent lines were attained by use of clipped salvia with tiny feverfew blossoms for focal interest, making a silhouette against the rose-colored background.

Diminutive red roses were grouped in a small gray urn and placed on a black base for the entry of Mrs. H. H. Askew for the Lullwater Garden Club.

Color characterized the arrangement of Mrs. Ivan Allen Jr. for the Mimosa Garden Club, the torenia and scabiosa combined in a decorated pitcher. For the Oakland City Garden Club, Mrs. A. C. Cawthon Sr. chose a white vase on a black stand to hold full-blown abelia blossoms and spirals of grass.

Mrs. G. O. Fugitt arranged nasturtiums in a small gourd for the East Lake Garden Club and with Mrs. Marion Swanson created many miniatures as an additional exhibit. White clematis and tiny hedge roses were combined in a rosy pottery pitcher by Mrs. C. T. Green for the Radiance Garden Club, while Chinese jasmine was arranged in a diminutive gold vase by Mrs. Lambdin Kay, president of the Bird and Flower Garden Club.

Flowers in tones of lavender and pink were grouped in a small blue and white Wedgewood urn by Mrs. W. A. Bowley for the Hawthorne Club, while a similar container was used by Mrs. R. M. Woodall, of the Rosemary Garden Club, to hold a feather green and white arrangement.

A line arrangement of echeveria in a small brushed copper bowl composed the well-constructed miniature exhibited for the Peachtree Garden Club by Mrs. James Henderson. The tiny copper pitcher selected by Mrs. Lawrence Willet, of the Iris Garden Club, to hold celosia plumes in soft pink and a cluster of dark berries at the rim was placed on a pinkish marble slab.

Miss Betty Jayne Bollinger, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Faber A. Bollinger, departed recently for an extended visit to the east. She will visit her grandmother, Mrs. Alice V. Bollinger, in Pennsylvania, as well as friends and relatives in Maryland, New Jersey and New York. Miss Bollinger is recuperating from a serious illness.

Movie Boss Decides Against a Scandal; Marilyn Explains Why She Is Saving

By JANE DIXON.

SYNOPSIS.

Clara Marsh, very conscious of her blond good looks and good figure, is voted winner of a beauty contest, promoted by the Metropole Amusement Corporation of New York, which attracted entries from six rural counties. She is so overcome that she can scarcely speak when she is introduced from the stage of Millvale's Bijou Theater by Al Martino, Metropole's sleek-haired representative. The prize is a 10-day trip to New York, all expenses paid, for the winner and a chaperon. That evening Clara's younger sister Marilyn receives a telegram announcing that she has won the prize of $1,000 for theb est last line in the Clarco Super Soap Suds Jingle Jubilee. Marilyn's happiness enrages Clara, who accuses her of trying to detract from her beauty contest honors. The next day Marilyn and Sally Meacham, who works with her in the Bon Ton Store, go in celebration for lunch to the Silver Grill. Martino, there with Clara, irritates Clara by asking who the two pretty girls are. That evening Marilyn, trying to patch up a truce with Clara, tells her she is happy their mother can go with Clara as chaperon and see New York, but Clara says she is taking the $100 allowed for thec haperon for herself. After Clara has left the house, hoping to meet Martino, Al calls and tells Marilyn he has wanted to meet her since seeing her at theg rill. Plainly, he is infatuated and Marilyn finally tells him he will make trouble for her if he does not stop his attentions. Marilyn is happy spending her money to fix up the old house. Back in New York with Clara, Al goes to Palmer Watson, head of Metropole, and asks to be relieved as her guide. He says it was six in the morning before he got her back to her hotel. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT VI.

"Don't raise your blood pressure about expenses, Chief," Al Martino said. "I've kept within the limit. You know the game. We go into a night club, I slip the headwaiter a five spot to pass around the word there's a beauty prize winner in the dump and to point her out. Right away the hebees in the dump begin to buzz around. Chief, this Millville blonde can pick up more suckers than Oregon has apples. Especially the bald suckers."

Palmer Watson roared with laughter. "What's wrong with her taking 'em if they ask to be took?" he managed, between roars. "We didn't bring her up here to keep her in hiding, did we? "She's not Little Goldielocks. Er—that reminds me, how old is she? We don't want any stuff about minors—"

"Don't worry. There'll be no Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children angle. She's 24. Told me she was 20 when she signed up for the contest. Her kid brother spilled the beans. She got her age mixed up with her sister's, that's all."

"Umm. Sister? Not a Beauty Bouqueter, huh, like this one?"

"Chief, the backward blonde's sister makes her look like a morning-after gardenia. She's the sweetest, cleanest—aw, what's the use? You can't describe a girl like Marilyn Marsh. Old Webster just hasn't got the words."

"Aha! So now we have it." The Chief was immensely pleased with himself. "The sister. He falls, like a brick house—for the sister. So he gets leary. He thinks maybe the beautiful blonde will cut too many capers. Maybe he can't handle her. Maybe he'll get in Dutch with the family. Am I right, my boy? Do I have it?"

Al moved from the corner of the desk to a lacquer red leather chair resembling a cavern.

"You win," he said. "My new torch song's 'I Left My Heart in Millville.' I'm serious this time, Chief. That's why I'm asking you to give me a transfer. I don't like the way Blondie trots. Last night we dropped into the Blue Parrot, you know, that hotsy-totsy joint in East Fifty-fourth. I slipped the headwaiter the usual five, he went into his act and right away a Good Time Charlie showed up at our table. He started feeding Blondie champagne cocktails. Chief, the way that gal can lap up champagne cocktails is a panic. Like water from the old oaken bucket. I saw she was starting to fizz, so I asked her to take a recess. She squawked, and she squawked loud. She lapped up another couple of rounds just to show me who was boss. So I showed her. I took the next one away from her and told the buyer to beat it. Had a hell of a time getting her out without playing rough. That's my story. Now will you give me a transfer?"

The Chief scowled so that his brows covered his eyes.

"Umm," he muttered. "Things don't look so good. Scandal, mayme. Metropole can't have scandal with its clients. Lou call up her hotel. See if it's all right. Better we make a change."

* * * *

Marilyn Marsh and Sally Meacham walked down the shady side of Main street. It had been a tiring day in the Bon Ton. A book sale. All the customers wanted the same book.

Sally spoke. "How's it for a soda, Lynn? Nice sirupy chocolate with chocolate ice cream. It's chocolate soda's made me what I am today." She observed her reflection in the shop windows. "Oh, well, what's a soda more or less when you're already a fudge-pudge. Let's stop in the Sugar Bowl. They double-dip their sodas."

"I am thirsty," said Marilyn. "I'll go for an orangeade—fresh oranges."

The thin ones take orangeade, the fat ones take double-dip. Here we are. Follow me. In know the table under the fan."

Seated, Sally began on the real purpose of the visit.

"Look here, Lynn," she said, "you've simply got to go to the charity ball. It's the best party of the year in Millville; in fact it's the only real party. Every one we know will be there—that is every one we want to know, and it's stacks of fun. Why do you turn it down? Is old age creeping up on you?"

Lynn said, with a smile for Sally's twitting, 'My years have not overcome me, entirely, but they are getting me down. If you must know, Miss Pry, I'm not going to the charity ball because I can't afford a new evening dress, and the vintage one I've worn for two years has now become rags and tatters."

'Lynn Marsh," indignantly, "you make me furious. A girl with a thousand dollars in her own name, complaining about not being able to afford a new dress. What do you expect to do? Sit on your money to see if it will hatch?"

"I'm not complaining and I'm not an old hen. Nor, Miss Pry, have I a thousand dollars in my own name."

"What did you do with it?" Sally wanted to know. "Put it in the name of your lawyer?"

"My lawyer is out of town. I put half of it in bonds in the name of William Marsh Jr. They will mature at the time Bill goes to college. Any objections?"

"Of course not, foolish." The depth of her friendship was in Salley's eyes. "It's great, you being able to help Bill. He's a cute kid, even if he is your brother. But half a thousand—that leaves five hundred, the way I was taught arithmetic. What about subtracting the price of a dress from the remaining five hundred? What about the blue and silver net we raved about in the Bon Ton. It's a sample, a real one, not a phoney. Sophie in the dresses told me it's such a small size no one has been able to wiggle into it. You said yourself it was the size you wear. They've put in on the sale rack, practically giving it away. Lynn, please nab it the first thing in the morning, will you, and go to the ball?"

"Sally, you're a dear for wanting me to go, but I can't. I'd rather not, honestly. You know I'm helping dad fix up our house. It needs dozens of things done to it. Nothing fancy, just repairs."

"I suppose house-fixing does run into money. But listen, Santa Claus, aren't you going to break down? Aren't you going to buy anything for yourself?"

Marilyn's smile teased. "I was waiting for that. Of course I'm buying something for myself. Something simply stupendous. Something I've wanted so much it hurts. Guess!"

"Lynn, you're torturing me." Sally rolled her eyes. "Tell me what it is this minute. You know I'm no good at guessing games."

"Very well, if you'll promise not to pester me again about the charity ball. Promise?"

"I'll try. Heaven knows I'll try."

"I'm going to work only part time at the Bon Ton this winter. The manager has agreed to keep me part time. I'm going to Millville Academy. You remember I took shorthand and typewriting in high school. It's just a skeleton course, so I'm planning to build on the framework I have, take a real course. I've registered for a course in English. Now you know why I'm not buying a new evening dress.

Sally swallowed a blob of ice cream so large it choked her.

"Well," she spluttered. "I swan! Back to the campus. If I didn't love you so much I'd turn green and envy would ooze from my pores. What's your ambition, Miss Marsh? Private secretary and marry the boss?"

"If he's handsome and doesn't dunk his doughnuts. Seriously, I'm not aiming at any particular mark—not yet. Just shooting in the general direction of bigger and better work."

In the kitchen after supper Marilyn detached white collar and cuffs from the green chambray dress that was uniform for women clerks in the Bon Ton. She must launder them for tomorrow. The manager was particular about

Mrs. Marsh finished putting away the dishes. Lynn noticed her mother was prolonging the task.

"Why don't you go out and rest in the swing, Mums?" she said. Her mother's face was flushed. "It's close in the kitchen."

"I was wanting to help you," said Mrs. Marsh. "I'm faster than you are with the iron. Only takes me a minute to press out your collar and cuffs."

"So you're trying to take my job away from me?" sternly. "I'll have to report you to the union. Out with you. Begone!"

Decatur Plans Extension of Street Projects

New Artery to Atlanta Included in Paving Program.

Decatur's 1940 street-paving program was extended yesterday as DeKalb Commissioner Scott Candler announced a project to pave West Howard avenue from East Lake drive to Ridgecrest road and City Manager A. F. Newman disclosed plans to pave three additional streets.

The West Howard avenue project, financed jointly by WPA and the county, will provide a new traffic artery between Atlanta and Decatur and will relieve West College avenue of traffic congestion. Eliminating all railway crossings, it will tie in with DeKalb avenue at Kirkwood and will cost $7,500 of which $2,824 will be in WPA labor.

Decatur's Manager Newman announced the approval of three street projects: Hough street, one block from Avery to Winona drive; Merrill avenue, one block from Coventry road to Scott boulevard, and Gordon street, two blocks from Second to Fourth avenues.

To be financed through Decatur street assessments and WPA labor, they will round out a program which includes Barry street, from East Ponce de Leon to the cemetery, and Layden street, from Third to Meade avenues.

Scotch Whisky, Food Plentiful In Berlin Cafes

Streets Lively, Taxis Run, Gasoline for Lighters, Reporter Finds.

By HENRY CASSIDY.

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—(AP)—There are a lot of surprises and changes in a trip to Berlin, for one who watched the war from the other side of the lines.

I came here after spending four years in Paris and many of the war months on the French and British fronts.

Life here, I found different from the picture that had been painted on the other side; the Germans are eating, drinking and smoking; they have gasoline and oil.

Berlin Animated.

French exaggeration of the internal situation in Germany, and under-estimation of the strength of the German system, are considered here to have played an important part in the downfall of France.

Coming into Berlin, the first striking thing is the animation in the streets. Trains, streetcars, buses and taxis are all running, in contrast to the emptiness of the Paris streets since just before the fall of the capital.

There, press and radio had reported Germany suffering from a severe shortage of gasoline and oil. Here, I even found tubes of gasoline for lighters on cigar store counters.

Taxis and private automobiles are restricted to "non-frivolous" uses, but there are enough for serious purposes. Planes fly constantly, and commercial air-lines still run to friendly capitals.

Sufficient Food.

I found it more difficult to obtain a meal here, because of the more complicated rationing system, but once its mysteries were solved, sufficient food could be found.

In France, ration cards for bread, sugar and coal applied only to household purchases in bulk. The only restrictions on eating in restaurants were those making Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays meatless days.

Here, there are only two meatless days, Tuesdays and Fridays, but ration tickets must be presented in restaurants for meat, bread, butter, rice and cheese. Real coffee and chocolate cannot be had, and sugar is served sparsely.

Scotch Whisky.

Beer and wine flows freely here, as it does in France, and one surprise is that Scotch whisky is still to be had easily.

War propaganda here is more extensive than it was in France. Communiques and news broadcasts are heard over radios in every big Berlin restaurant during meals. The French never let war interfere with their eating.

The Winter Garten stages 19 acts of vaudeville, with many American-style jugglers, acrobats, singers and dancers—and closes its show with the German army newsreel.

By night, one blackout is much like another, just as one black cat looks like another. Here, however, blue-green street lights increase obscurity, and white-painted street corners save many a toe from stumbling.
